

SENATOR FLETCHER AIDED BY WILSON IN RE-ELECTION FIGHT President Writes Letter Com- mending Floridian for Activ- ity in Supporting Legislative Program

By RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Democratic leaders in Washington have shown great interest in the result of the Florida primary which occurs next Tuesday. The senatorial race between Duncan U. Fletcher, the sitting member, and J. N. "Boss" Stockton, a real estate man of Jacksonville, has attracted wide attention.

Senator Fletcher has been an administration man throughout the administration of President Wilson, and the feeling in Washington is that Fletcher's re-nomination by a decided majority will help materially to strengthen the administration in congress and throughout the country.

The regard in which Senator Fletcher is held by the president is shown by a letter Mr. Wilson wrote to a Floridian concerning the senator's record. This letter has just been made public and is accepted in Washington as reflecting the interest the president feels in Fletcher's re-election. It follows:

PRESIDENT'S LETTER.

Mr. Arthur T. Williams,
Jacksonville, Fla.

My Dear Mr. Williams:

I have your letter of March 19 and am very glad to reply to it.

I am surprised that any one should charge Senator Fletcher with being a reactionary. Certainly, during the time that I have been able to observe his course of action, he has supported the progressive policy of the party, not only with unvarying loyalty, but with real energy, and has shown at every turn a desire to promote the best interests of the people through the instrumentality of legislation. I have learned to feel the highest regard for him and am glad to have this opportunity of expressing my confidence in him.

Cordially and sincerely yours,
(Signed) WOODROW WILSON.

Few members of congress have been more loyal to the Wilson administration than Senator Fletcher. He has read the mark at every test, and has been found standing squarely by the president's legislative program.

Shortly after his inauguration, President Wilson selected Senator Fletcher to head the rural credits commission that went to Europe to study farm credit systems in the countries over there.

The president accepted the report of the Fletcher commission practically as it was written by the Florida senator, and today this report is being followed by the currency committee of congress in shaping the administration rural credits legislation which will be considered within the next month.

ARTHUR OF HILL.

Senator Fletcher is author of the administration rural credits bill, and as such has been recently appointed to membership on the currency committee of the senate to help guide that committee in the perfection of the legislation.

While the democratic leaders in Washington do not profess to know anything of the local issues in the Florida campaign, they think the question of rural credits and the endorsement of the Wilson administration should be paramount. They are therefore that the return of Senator Fletcher by the people of Florida will have a strengthening influence not only on the rural credits legislation yet to be enacted but on the entire program of the president.

The reports that have reached Washington have kept gratifying to friends of the administration and of Senator Fletcher. It is the belief here that the senator will be re-nominated by a substantial majority.

DIX As Investment Diamonds Have Paid 10% Per Annum for Years

This fact is easily shown by tracing diamond history from 1897, since when diamonds have more than doubled in value.

Reasons for these advances are obvious. Fewer stones are being found, and finer stones rarer. Mining machinery has become obsolete on account of the greater depth of the mines. The native miners have recognized their value, and are demanding higher wages, and a radical increase in the wages has been demanded and obtained by the diamond cutters.

In December 1908 we began calling attention to the probable rapid increase in diamond values, since when there have been several material advances, and during the few months, the Diamond Syndicate made advances on rough diamonds, which increased the value of the finished product about 12 per cent.

Anticipating this advance we made large contracts with the cutters during the early summer season, and are giving our customers the benefit of these prices, though it will be necessary for us to increase our prices after our present large stock is exhausted.

Exclusive Diamond Merchants, our whole time is given to the one idea of value. Our large purchases enable us to buy direct from larger cutters of the world, and our careful grading and classing, together with our positive guarantee of cash return and exchange value assures your investment.

Our mail order department is a perfect system, and your business and correspondence will be given the most careful attention.

We will be glad to mail you our Diamond Books Set No. 5 upon request.

"Rexall" Druggists Ready For Big Convention Here

With Louis K. Liggett at Their Head, Three Days' Session
Will Be Held in Auditorium
Beginning Tuesday

With over 800 "Rexall" druggists from all over the United States in attendance, many of them with their wives, the twelfth annual convention of the United Drug company will begin in the auditorium Tuesday, and will last for three days.

Louis K. Liggett, of Boston, president of the company, will be present at Atlanta, a member of the board of directors of the company, is chairman of the entertainment committee for the visitors.

This convention is the first of four to be held by the United Drug company this year. Each of the druggists attending are stockholders in the company; there are 7,000 stockholders all these, at the conventions, make the rules that run the company.

A corps of men, in charge of David Strange, advertising manager, and W. C. Nelly, convention manager, have been working for days in the auditorium getting it into shape for the visitors.

The main hall of the great building is made up of eighteen booths, each exhibiting some particular product of the company; the iron gliders of the roof are hidden under streams of blue and white bunting, and around the walls back of the booths are painted "Scenes from Georgia."

The convention will cost the company $40,000, state Governor John M. Slaton will open the convention Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock with an address of welcome from the state of Georgia. Mayor James G. Woodruff will welcome the visitors on behalf of the city. L. K. Liggett, president of the company, James C. McCormick, the treasurer, will remain in charge.

LADIES TO ASSEMBLE.

During the afternoon business session, the ladies will assemble at the auditorium, where automobiles will be provided for a trip through the city and suburbs, visiting all points of interest, and winding up at the Capital City Country Club, Brookhaven, where luncheon and refreshments will be served. The return trip will be made direct to the hotels.

In the afternoon, both men and women will be given a theater party at the Lyric, and in addition to the regular program, numerous special features have been provided, which will include several numbers brought from New York for the occasion.

After the business meeting at the auditorium Wednesday morning every body will take special cars for the hold, each visiting druggist being given one. The Jackson, completely equipped, has been on exhibition in the show windows of the Jackson company for several days.

Wednesday evening the auditorium will be the scene of a grand southern audit lang sene dancing carnival, at which will be provided special unique features and electric music effects. The evolution of the dance from the olden times down to the present will be illustrated by Minnie Elbertina Rasch and Edward Mahaffy, premier dancers of the Century Opera company, New York City. These artists were brought to Atlanta especially for this occasion. Following the dance, supper will be served.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE.

Wednesday evening, Mr. T. V. Wooten, secretary of the International Association of Rexall Clubs, will give an illustrated lecture at the auditorium accompanied by moving and colored pictures made especially for the convention by the Edison people. The pictures and talk will illustrate and describe the United Drug company and depict many of the processes of the manufacture of the products.

On Thursday, business meetings will be held both in the forenoon and in the afternoon. One of the business features for the afternoon will be drawing for a Jackson automobile which will be given entirely free to the visiting druggist holding the lucky number. These tickets in this drawing were not

LUMPKIN AGAIN HEADS

The district carriers will convene again in Rome in May, 1915.

COLLEGE INN MANAGER
IS FINED BY RECORDER

Both Proprietor and Manager
Are Held for Higher
Courts

"I am amazed that such a place ever was allowed to open in the city of Atlanta," declared Recorder pro tem W. H. Preston, yesterday afternoon, ordering that the College Inn be closed immediately. L. O. Williams, proprietor, and J. J. Jarvis, manager, were fined $50 each under the old and nearly forgotten city ordinance against disorderly houses.

The prosecution of the College Inn was led by Dr. Horace Grant, who testified he went there to reclaim the young daughter of a widow, when the widow begged him to help her. He detailed conditions he found. Other witnesses painted the pictures blacker.

The College Inn has been located for a number of months in a basement near the corner of Peachtree, at 2 1-2 Auburn avenue. It was raided recently by Sergeant Bullard and Plain Clothes Officer Shaw.

TWO NEGRO BOYS DROWN
IN CHATTAHOOCHEE RIVER

Stream Is Draggd by County
Policemen and Bodies Are Recovered

Two negro boys were drowned yesterday afternoon in the Chattahoochee river within sight of the bridge over which the Marietta cars pass.

The double tragedy is the first reported in or near the city since the swimming season opened.

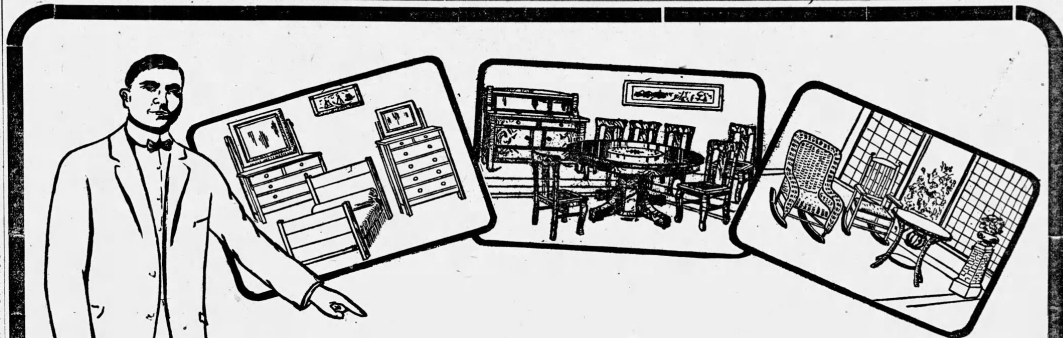

The victims are Carlos Foster, 60, Main street, and Pope McKinley, 27, Rock street.

Several men heard the boys shout for help as they were sinking and rushed to the river bank, but reached there after the boys had gone down the last time.

The boys, who were both about 14 years of age, were drowned about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. County policemen, Williams, Allen, Whitfield, Pope, Baker and Casey were called to the scene and dragged the river until about 8 o'clock, when both bodies were recovered.

Reduced 95 Pounds!

RENE THOMAS WINS 500 MILE GRIND ON INDIANAPOLIS TRACK

All Speed Records From Five to Five Hundred Miles Shattered by Automobile Speed Kings

(By Associated Press.)
INDIANAPOLIS, May 30.—Rene Thomas, driving a French car, won the fourth annual 500 mile race on the Indianapolis motor speedway today. All speed records from five to five hundred miles were broken. The first American to finish was Barney Oldfield, in fifth place.

Thomas' time was six hours, three minutes, 45 and 50-100 seconds. The winner maintained an average speed of 82.47 miles an hour. The former record of six hours, 21 minutes and 100 seconds was established by Joe Dawson in 1912.

Arthur Duray finished second, seven minutes after the winner. Albert Dwyer, teammate of Thomas, was third, and Jules Goux, winner of the 1913 race, finished fourth, six minutes ahead of Oldfield.

His men were injured, none seriously. Joe Dawson suffered a broken collarbone and minor injuries when his car turned over after trying to dodge the wrecked machine of Ray Gilheoley.

Vere Barnes, Dawson's mechanic, was hurt, and Gilheoley, and Nino Zozani, his mechanic, also suffered minor injuries. Jean Chassagne and Albert Mitchell, handling an English car, limped away from their machine after it rolled over a turn.

The race was an exciting one and rivaling among the foreign teams made one of the most exciting finishes ever witnessed at the Indianapolis course. George Bollett pushed his car such an excessive speed that in the one hundred and forty-seventh lap, when leading the field he was forced out because of a broken frame.

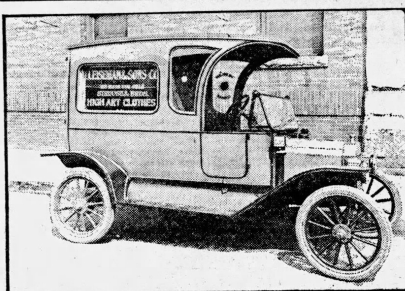

Duray thrilled the spectators by his sensational effort to catch Thomas near the end of the contest and Goux seemed always to be a contender for first place. Thomas made one stop at the pits, Duray two and Goux one. Thomas drove the last 100 miles at an average of more than 84 miles an hour. Thomas' car was No. 16. Goux carried the same number to victory last year. Thomas was first prize of $25,000 and accessory prizes and trophies will total this amount to about $45,000.

Four Christians in a Belgian car finished sixth, Harry Grant, in an English machine was seventh, Keene and Rodgers, in an American car, placed eighth and William Carlson was ninth. R. V. Hickensacker, in an American car, finished tenth, the last of the prize winners. Haupt, Mulford and Burnham, in Knipper's entry, finished the race in twelfth place. One hundred thousand persons saw the race.

Oldest Ratliff Killed

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
MAY 30, (a. m.)—The oldest ratliff snake ever seen in this vicinity, according to many who are familiar with reptile history, was killed near Dry Branch by Major S. C. Crum. The snake was six feet, five inches long, and had 15 rattles and a lion, indicating that it was more than 19 years old.

J. EISEMAN & SONS' NEW CAR

ATTRACTING MUCH ATTENTION

This is a picture of J. Eisman & Sons' new Ford delivery car. It is one of the handsomest and most unique delivery cars in America—according to traveling men who have seen it.

The car body is a rich, light blue trimmed with yellow. The fenders and wheels are yellow. The most novel feature is the big mirrors on the sides, bearing the following inscription:

J. EISEMAN & SONS CO.
THE STORE THAT SELLS
STROUSE AND BROS.
HIGH ART CLOTHES.

When the sun strikes these mirrors, it attracts attention through its dazzling reflection.

Particularly attractive are these mirrors at night, on account of being brilliantly illuminated with small incandescent lights.

The glass panels, at the front, are lettered as follows:

BUSINESS LINES UP FOR GREATER GEORGIA TECH

Big Impetus Given Plans for Whirlwind Ten Days'
Campaign

Atlanta's leaders in the manufacturing and industrial world have taken up the campaign to raise $500,000 for a greater Georgia Tech, following the appeal that was made to them by President K. G. Matheson and Judge Nat. P. Harris, President of the board of trustees at the dinner Friday night at the Central City club and are now laying plans for a whirlwind ten day campaign.

J. B. A. Hobson has been made temporary chairman of the movement and a luncheon meeting has been called for Monday at 12:45 o'clock in the main dining room of the Piedmont hotel, at which a hundred leading spirits will be present and at this meeting the working committee will be organized.

All those who have promised definitely to aid in the campaign are particularly urged to be at this meeting.

Thomas V. Stephens of New York, who has come south to manage this campaign for his alma mater, said yesterday when plans were being made, "The meeting Monday will begin promptly on the minute at 12:45. We have made arrangements to have the lunch promptly served and the business will be quickly transacted. We can promise those who come that it will adjourn on the dot at 2 o'clock."

The campaign about to be put under way is not in any sense going to be a popular appeal to the general public to subscribe small sums. The appeal is going to be made direct to the manufacturers and industrial leaders who will be benefited by improved facilities in the College of Technology, and they will be asked for subscriptions ranging from $100 to $500 and over per year for a period of five years.

The appeal will be made first principally to the big manufacturers and industrial leaders in Atlanta and its immediate vicinity. A little later it will be made statewide.

DONATED MACHINERY.
The immediate cause of the movement at this time is the fact that great numbers of machinery people have donated over $100,000 worth of equipment absolutely free, provided that Tech get the necessary money in the south to build a power plant and house this splendid equipment.

This situation, however, is only the immediate occasion for presenting the general needs of an institution which has completely outgrown its present facilities and which is terribly handicapped for money and equipment.

Those who contribute a sum of $100 to $500 annually for a period of five years will receive certificates representing the amount subscribed, and these certificates will represent the contributor's relation with the school in the cooperative plan for the state wide industrial development. The holders of these certificates will be entitled to special privileges in the laboratories for research and engineering work, and the school will further offer every possible assistance in the development of new ideas, new by-products, better ways of transportation, better highways, better industrial conditions, higher degree of safety in all lines of industrial work. It will entitle the donor to participate in the annual electrical and manufacturing show of the school where he will be provided free of charge with electricity, steam, compressed air, water, etc. for advertising purposes and he will be supplied with detailed information each year relative to the graduates and students, which will enable him to extend his advertising first hand to the young engineers who are soon to be the captains of industry in the state of Georgia and the south.

REASON FOR SUPPORT.
While Georgia has a population larger than any other southern state except Texas, facts have been presented showing that the working income for Georgia Tech is the smallest that any state provides for technological purposes in the south, with the single exception of Florida.

With the leaders who are now behind this big movement, Dr. Matheson is confident that Georgia Tech is about to enter upon a new era of greater usefulness to be enjoyed by the state and the people, and will be enabled to attain pre-eminence which she has always longed for and which she is now to attain through the support of a leader among technological institutions of the south.

to Have Sessions

The sixteenth annual session of the southern branch of the National Dental association and the forty-seventh annual session of the Georgia State Dental society will be held jointly in Atlanta, commencing Thursday morning, June 4, at 9 o'clock in the convention hall of the Hotel Ansley.

Invitations to attend have been extended to all ethical members of the dental profession, practitioners who have honorable retired, practitioners of medicine or surgery and others interested in the science of dentistry.

Ethical manufacturers and dealers in dental supplies, drugs and medicines are invited to exhibit their goods.

An elaborate program has been arranged that includes the reading of many interesting papers. The address of welcome will be made by Governor John M. Slaton.

P. O. INSPECTOR SENT HERE FROM CHATTANOOGA

(Special Dispatch to The Journal)
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 30.—H. G. Reese, postoffice inspector of the Chattanooga district, has been transferred to the Atlanta district. He will leave Monday afternoon and will probably be assigned to work on the Florida coast under supervision of E. E. Barry, inspector-in-chief of the Atlanta district.

In the lower picture, the heroine, Miss May Millikin, is shaking her fist at the laughing villain, Walter Conner. Above five of the leading performers are grouped. They are, from left to right, Miss Ethel Malloy Nesel, Elliott Dunwoody, Miss Louise Burroughs, Miss May Millikin and Walter Conner. The play will be acted night of June 3 in the Atlanta theater.

FRANK MOTION BEFORE JUDGE HILL NEXT FRIDAY

Affidavits From Trial Judge
L. S. Roan Expected to Play Big Part

It is generally believed that the last postponement of the motion to set aside the verdict of guilty against Leo M. Frank has been allowed, and that the case will actually come up for a hearing before Judge Ben H. Hill on next Friday.

When the motion, which asks that the verdict be set aside on the ground that the defendant was not in court when it was rendered, was first filed, it was generally believed the fight would be only on the law in the case.

Now it is apparent the fight on the facts involved will be just as hot as the fight over the legal points.

Saturday the state secured an affidavit from Judge L. S. Roan the trial judge now a member of the court of appeals. The attorneys for the movants had already secured an affidavit from him.

The reason assigned for Frank's not being present at the rendition of the verdict was the fear of a mob from the crowd, which gathered in and around the court house during the trial.

Solicitor General Dorsey is preparing to contend that the situation was not really critical, and that the fear of violence was largely manufactured.

The solicitor is collecting a large number of affidavits, and by some of them he will try to show that the fact that the verdict was to be rendered in his absence and in the presence of a mob, actually, agreed to the waiver of his presence.

The motion contends that while two of Frank's counsel did waive his presence, the fact that the verdict was about to be returned just about an hour after the jury had found him guilty.

While the state also secured for Frank at the trial, L. Z. Rosser and Southern R. Arnold also appear as probable witnesses in this phase of the case, the fight on the motion to set aside promises to be just as hot as the fight on the other motions.

The motion to set aside is the one filed by Attorneys Tys. Peoples, Haas Alexander and others.

EAST SIDE CITIZENS TO ASK FOR FIRE STATION

The East Atlanta Improvement club has called a meeting for next Monday evening to discuss ways and means of securing a fire station for that part of the city.

The nearest station to East Atlanta now is No. 12, which is more than a mile and a half away. The members of the club, think that East Atlanta is entitled to a station of its own and say they are going to have the matter decided Monday evening, which will be held at 8 o'clock in the grove facing Wall Bros. store.

Just Like Riding On a Cloud

Press your hand down on the seat of a Sidway Baby Carriage and feel the gentle movements of the carriage body for the infant baby.

Examine the Sidway adjustable long-leaf suspension spring—every possible shock is kept from the seat of the carriage, and the tension of the spring can be immediately adjusted to the increasing weight of the baby.

Sidway
GUARANTEED
This Means the Finest of Every Carriage

Notice the exceptional bed length and width of the Sidway, its beauty of design, its fine workmanship. Every part of the carriage from top to tires is guaranteed for two years. Special feature—Faberlok Leather used is made exclusively for the Sidway, and carries the additional guarantee of the DuPont Fabrikoid Co., sole makers of Faberlok. Yet, a Sidway costs no more than many carriages unguaranteed and lacking the Sidway features. There's a Sidway to suit every taste and purse. Made by the Sidway Mercantile Co., Elkhart, Ind. BEN GRAHAM

301-2 EMPIRE BLDG. IVY 8355.

FOR SALE—REAL ESTATE OGLETHORPE PARK
VS.
ANSLEY PARK
1914 vs. 1904
PROSPERITY vs. "CROAKERS"

Oglethorpe Park vs. Ansley Park

Oglethorpe PARK is as directly in the line of development as Ansley Park was in 1904, and its increase in property value will be just as great.

TEN YEARS from today Oglethorpe Park will have as many handsome homes in it as Ansley Park has today.

The Croakers will tell you differently, but watch my prediction. There are only two classes of citizens in Atlanta: THE ONES WHO LIVE ON THE NORTH SIDE and the ONES WHO WANT TO LIVE ON THE NORTH SIDE.

Visit Oglethorpe Park immediately, and you will be surprised at what you find there today. The streets are all graded and the lots are all staked. You can select anything from a three-quarter acre building lot to a fifteen acre chicken farm. Every lot will double in value within five years! You can buy these lots with your salary, or any way you please.

Have your own agent help you select your lot and take his judgment as to future values, if you are not willing to accept mine.

More homes have been built north of Peachtree Creek in the last twelve months than in the ten preceding years.

Peachtree Road will be built up solid to Oglethorpe University within ten years.

Peachtree Road frontage to the DeKalb county line is a good investment today at any price under $75 per front foot, and will double up in ten years.

The Peachtree Battlefield will be the handsomest and most popular National Park in America within the next ten years.

1914 vs. 1904

In 1904 the city limits ended at Sixth street. In 1914 Ansley Park was a tangible piece of the city, and paid less than $500 in taxes to Fulton county.

In 1904 Atlanta's population was 58,000. In 1914 Atlanta's population was 122,000—an increase of 252 per cent.

In 1904 Atlanta's bank clearings were $23,000,000. In 1914 Atlanta's bank clearings were $158,000,000.

The postoffice receipts in 1902 were $415,859.35. In 1914 Atlanta had only half a dozen skyscrapers.

In 1904 the assessed value of Atlanta real estate was $48,232,000.00. In 1914 it was $172,729,477.

In 1904 there was not a house in Druid Hills and only one good house on Ponce de Leon avenue between the railroad and the country line.

Every section in the extended city limits has shown the same wonderful development.

The next extension of the city limits will take in, Kirkwood, Oakhurst, Decatur, East Point and Buckhead.

Ponce de Leon avenue is now built up solid to the country line. There are many handsome homes in Druid Hills.

Prosperity vs. Croaker

Ten years ago the world did not believe the Panama Canal would ever be built. Today it is a finished product. Its opening means that the tide of trade will change in the United States and that the South and her Southern ports will enter upon an era of untold prosperity.

Ten years ago the farmers of the South could not get money to properly improve their farms at any price. Today President Wilson has proven himself the greatest real estate agent the world has ever known, and is forcing the water out of the "hoose" listed stocks in the gambling houses of the United States and is removing the embargo laid on America's greatest producer—the farmer, and allowing him to use his only security as an asset for National Bank loans.

The world now realizes that mortgages secured by productive farm lands are the safest and best securities obtainable, and from this day forward they will be the most popular securities for all classes of trust funds, because man's mismanagement cannot affect them and no water has to be squeezed out of them.

Ten years ago there were only a few automobile garages in Atlanta. Today every automobile manufacturer either has a warehouse here, or will soon have one, and will be forced to locate a branch of his factory here to save freight rates.

Only a few years ago all the cotton factories of the country were located in the East. Within a few years they will all be located in the cotton fields for the same reason.

The same reasons that force the automobile and cotton factories to come South will force all the large manufacturing to locate branch factories here.

Ten years ago there was not a good road in Georgia outside the counties in which her largest cities were located, and the average price of Georgia farm lands was $10 to $15 per acre. Today every county in Georgia has a system of good roads and farm lands are worth from $25.00 to $100 per acre and will double within the next five years.

Ten years ago the average yield of cotton per acre was one-quarter to one-half bale per acre. Today intensive farming produces from one to five bales per acre.

Ten years ago Georgia's average corn crop yield was 15 to 20 bushels per acre. Today boys under 20 years of age are making from 100 to 200 bushels per acre.

Georgia's agricultural crop for 1913 was $458,000,000 and her manufactured products were valued at $300,000,000, making a total production of nearly one billion dollars.

Figure for yourself the thousands of other things that show Atlanta and the South's wonderful growth within the last ten years that guarantees the wonderful future growth of this wonderful development.

Real Estate and Building News and Market Comment

BIDS TO BE ASKED SOON ON NEW OFFICE BUILDING

Structure Will Replace Old City Hall—Other Important Building Jobs

Bids will probably be asked next week on the office building with which R. B. Arnold and Harvey Hill will replace the old city hall building at Pryor and Hunter streets.

The working plans are now being finished by Walker and Chase, the architects, and a permit will probably be taken during June.

This building will be seven stories, and will cost around $130,000. It will be constructed with a view of adding another three stories later on.

Another important building, for which a permit will probably be taken during June, will be at the corner of Forsyth and Trotherton street. The cost of this building will depend on whether it will be fireproof or semi-fireproof.

Both these jobs are absolutely assured. There are several others which are highly probable, but are not as yet official.

From now on building value will show a steady gain over 1913. Dr. E. L. Connally is still working on his plans for an office building at Whitehall and Alabama streets, on the Brown and Allen corner, which will cost a million. This building will be started in September, when the present tenants will vacate.

The improvement in building has been due to the gradual easing of money, which has already led to the erection of several apartment houses, dwellings of the expensive type, and business buildings.

1914 BUILDING TO DATE OVER $100,000 AHEAD

Month of May Also Runs Close Race With May, 1913

BUILDING COMPARISON.

Jan. 1, 1914 to date, $2,574,682
Jan. 1, 1913 to date, 2,155,588
Gain 1914 to date, $1,117,105
May, 1913 complete, $771,457
May, 1914, complete, 728,849
Loss in May, 1914, $44,508

The value of building for 1914 goes into June with a lead of something like $100,000 over the corresponding period in 1913.

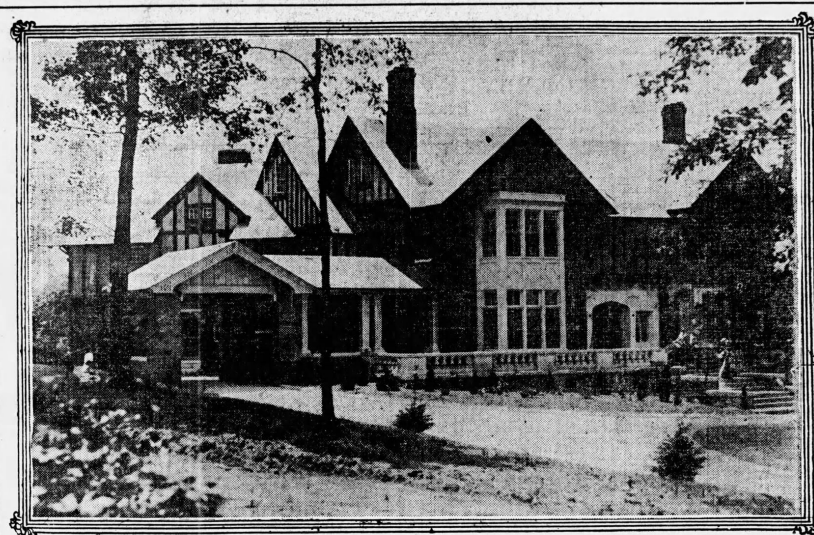

The month of May ran a close race with May, 1913, due to the fact that the Ford permit, calling for a $275,000 building, was issued last Friday.

From now on building will show a steady if not sensational increase. Last year the main activity came in May, with $772,000 worth of building permits. After that the record fell off.

The feature of building just now is the number of apartment houses and business buildings up to a value of $50,000, as well as a fair activity in dwellings.

An application for a $50,000 abattoir was received by the building inspector last Friday, and that will be issued early in June. A $25,000 apartment house will also be issued soon, as well as some important commercial buildings mentioned elsewhere.

EXAMPLE OF A MODERN ATLANTA RESIDENCE

Home of Preston S. Arkwright on Ponce de Leon avenue in Druid Hills. M. R. Arkwright selected a lot both elevated and in a depression, the latter containing a branch, which has been walled in with concrete. The grounds were designed by a landscape artist, and the place is one of the most beautiful in Atlanta.

BOULEVARD DRIVE OFFERS THIRD DEKALB APPROACH

Connects Kirkwood, East Lake and Decatur by a Direct Route

When the work started last week on Boulevard drive is completed, a new and direct route will be provided from Atlanta to Kirkwood, the East Lake drive and Decatur.

The new drive will come into Atlanta on Moreland avenue between Harder and Wylie streets, a distance of three blocks south of Boulevard DeKalb, the latter a continuation of Decatur street.

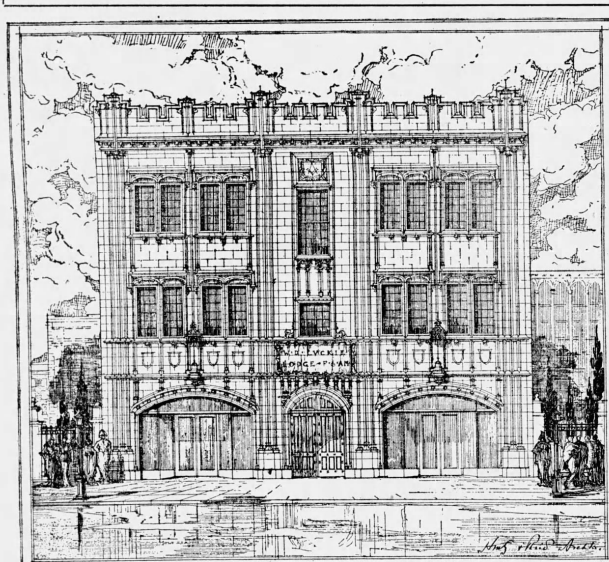

People going to East Lake can drive out Edgewood avenue or Decatur street, cross the Georgia railroad, and go south on Moreland avenue three blocks to Boulevard drive.

The drive proceeds directly east to Clifton station, thence through Kirkwood, and from Kirkwood to the East Lake drive at a point just north of the Gentry residence. A movement is now on foot to open the road east of East Lake drive to a road entering Decatur street.

From Moreland east the drive is fifty feet wide. In Kirkwood it is eighty feet. It is now being graded from Clifton to Moreland, and thence from Clifton station through Kirkwood.

From Kirkwood to the East Lake drive the road is already graded. The new route will add a third to the approaches to East Lake. The first through Druid Hills and the drive; the second through Edgewood avenue and DeKalb avenue to the drive; and this through Boulevard drive.

ATTRACTIVE NEW LODGE BUILDING

New home of the W. D. Luckie Lodge No. 89, F. & A. M., on Lee street in West End. The building will cost about $10,000, and it is now under construction. There are three floors. The first will be occupied by storage, one of which has already been leased to the government for ten years as a postoffice substation. The lodge room will be on the third floor, while the second will be open for banquet purposes. The building will be completed about August. Hents & Held are the architects.

B. D. Watkins, Formerly With the Adair Agency, Opens Office of His Own

Beginning tomorrow, June 1, B. D. Watkins, one of Atlanta's best known real estate men, will enter business for himself with offices on the second floor of the Fourth National Bank building.

Mr. Watkins is severing his connection with the firm of Forrest and George Adair, after a successful association of nine years in the sales department. He has made a specialty of central and business property, having handled a number of large and important deals during his connection with that firm. But he has made careful study both of city and suburban property, and has acquired a knowledge of and a familiarity with it that will prove a valuable asset to him in his new field.

Mr. Watkins will enter the general real estate business devoting attention to transactions of every nature; but it is his purpose for the present to lend his energies particularly to the development and sale of two residence subdivisions, one in Decatur and the other in Inman Park, in which he is interested with others as owner.

Widely and favorably known, Mr. Watkins' many friends predict a successful career for him in the work upon which he now proposes to enter.

TWO MORE AUCTIONS TO BE HELD THIS WEEK One Will Be of Marietta Street Property, Other in East Atlanta

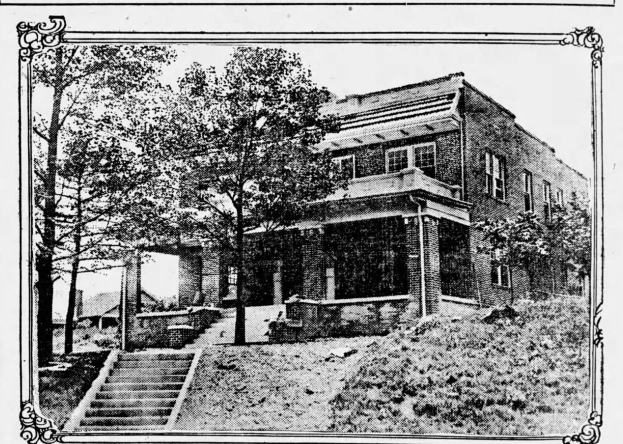

Two more auction sales will be held this week, one of business property and the other of real estate.

On next Wednesday at noon, Forrest and George Adair and Roff Sims & Co. will offer five lots on Marietta street, near Earle, the property of the Todd estate.

These lots are 25x129 each to a four-foot front alley in the rear. They are opposite the Hemphill property, which was successfully sold at auction some time ago.

J. B. Jackson will offer on next Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock sixteen residence lots and one business lot in East Atlanta, near Flat Shoals road. These lots are in the Newton St. subdivision.

APARTMENT HOUSE ON EUCLID AVENUE

Another small apartment house which E. Ragnan has built in the Inman Park section. This is on Euclid avenue east of Moreland avenue. The building is about complete.

GRANT & CHRISTIE OPEN REALTY AGENCY

Grant and Christie is the style of a new real estate firm which has just taken quarters at No. 506 Empire building.

H. W. Grant, senior member of the firm, has been with the R. O. Cochran company as a salesman for the past five years.

S. R. Christie has specialized in apple lands in north Georgia and is well posted in this line of real estate.

BUILDING INSPECTOR AND DEPARTMENT ARE PRAISED

Under the head of conclusions, the report says:

"The building laws are comprehensive and conform mainly with modern methods of construction; several exceptions and omissions in regard to fire prevention features are important and should be given proper attention in future regulations; various points left to the discretion of the inspector are properly handled; the definite provisions of law. The fire limits are not sufficiently extensive, and the district within which slide roofs are prohibited only slightly exceeds the limits as shown by the fire record, the prohibited shingle roof district should be extended to include the entire city. The building department is an efficient organization and the building laws are being well enforced. Structural conditions show considerable improvement since 1909, the new buildings are of modern type, well designed and in part properly protected; in the older buildings conditions are poor to fair."

BUILDING ACTIVITY IN EASTMAN PARK

F. C. Eastman, Jr., owner of Eastman Park, has sold another bungalow in lot 12 of block 2, on Elbridge drive to J. V. Gables. This is the second bungalow sale in Eastman Park in a week, the price in each case being $2,250.

Two more five-room bungalows, storm sheltered, with brick and stone fronts, will be started shortly. Both will be on Elbridge drive.

A Curiosity at Mandalay

Of the many curiosities to be seen in the wonderful town of Mandalay, few attract the attention of the traveling westerner more than the "elephant house" in the city. It is a large, old, and very many stories. The principal object of attraction is a large elephant, which is kept in the house, and is a very fine specimen of the breed. It is twelve and a half feet high and weighs about 10,000 pounds. It is kept in the house with a view of showing it to the public, and is a very fine specimen of the breed. It is kept in the house with a view of showing it to the public, and is a very fine specimen of the breed.

STEPS TAKEN TO GRADE TWO THOROUGFARES

Property Owners Consider Work on Williams Mill Road and Highland Avenue

Steps looking to the grading and cherting of the Williams Mill road and Highland avenue by the county commission of DeKalb county were taken last week at a meeting of property owners held at Peachtree church.

The two roads come together at what is known as the Wallace place. H. J. Freeman, county commissioner of DeKalb county, who was present, said that he would grade and chert the roads if the property owners would give the material and quarry the stone.

W. E. Worley and J. A. Mahoney, two of the owners, offered to give $3,000 in cash and the required stone if the county would change the Williams Mill road, taking it out of the creek and the grade crossing and throwing it up on the ridge west of the Sales home, coming into Highland avenue at the Wallace place. This, they said, would give an overpass instead of the grade crossing.

This proposition will be considered by a committee of nine composed of E. Worley, Herbert Sage, W. W. Hedrick, J. V. Brownlee, W. R. Smith, W. L. Tuggle and others. Mr. Worley also offered $500 towards the grading and cherting of Highland avenue to the Wallace place.

SAYS SUPPLY OF NOTES IS NOW ABOUT EXHAUSTED

First Mortgage Real Estate Paper Scarce and in Demand, Agent Says

An agent who handles real estate purchase money notes both on his own account and for customers, said yesterday that the floating supply of good notes had about been exhausted.

He considered that this was one of the best possible indications of a sound market, for it indicated the gradual easing of money and pointed the way for further investment.

For, he pointed out, the investors who bought notes will now turn their attention to buying property or to financing real estate operations of various kinds.

There is already an indication of a return from strictly investment dealings, either in the forms of notes, mortgages and renting property with high returns, to property with enhanced possibilities.

People who sell property whose bonds for title go to record have been called up by note brokers and offers have been made for the notes. This is in contrast to the indifference of the brokers had previously shown to any offering of notes.

First mortgage notes on property upon which as much as a third or a fourth cash has been paid are scarce and in strong demand, and discount rates are easier even on second mortgage notes, or notes on vacant property.

MORELAND AVENUE APARTMENT HOUSE

This apartment house is just being completed by E. Ragnan on Moreland avenue a block north of Euclid street. This building is typical of several small attractive apartment houses that have been built in Atlanta during the present season.

FAT AND LEAN AGENTS TO PLAY NEXT SATURDAY

Bets are being offered freely on the outcome of the baseball game on Saturday afternoon at Piedmont Park between the fats and the leans of the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Ben Treadwell is captain of the fats and George Bonnell of the leans. Harry G. White, president of the board, will offer a cup to the victorious player. The worst player will be ducked in the lake, and any player who refuses to enter the game will act as water-boy.

The three real estate writers of the newspapers will act as judges.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

With the coming of June there will be the usual exodus of society folk to seashores and mountains. Rumors are current that the season at Lake Towaway will be more brilliant than for several summers past. Bungalows and camps are in readiness and several large house parties will be given at the beautiful resort, the guests to include a number of the younger set of the neighboring cities. Week-end parties continue to be the favorite form of summer entertaining and the quiet of the mountains will be broken by gay parties of young people who will arrive for a Sunday in the great wide, open spaces, far from the hurry and rush of the city. Many Atlantans are planning to spend the summer months in Europe, but instead of the usual carefully planned trips, several congenial groups of friends have arranged to spend weeks motoring through the chateaux country of France and even contemplating extending their tour into southern Spain. For those who stay at home the country clubs with their picturesque and beautiful surroundings offer an ideal retreat for the summer afternoons and evenings.

Some Wonderful Secrets That Bring Quick Beauty

The Sure and Quick Road to Real Beauty. Famous Beauty Secrets that Have Made the "Charming Face" the "Greatest Hair-Made Beauty."

By Valenka Su'att

TO MY mind there are few things as hideous as superfluous hairs on a woman's face. The reason why more women do not remove this manly and coarse growth is that they fear the action of the hair removers commonly sold. For this they cannot be blamed, since it is a fact that the present-day depilatories burn off the hair and usually leave a red or irritated spot where applied, and is "dead give-away." There is a superior hair-remover, however, which is very remarkable and novel in its action.

DANDER UP.—Yes, you can get rid of dandruff right off. But you want something which not only removes dandruff completely, but that will actually force the hair to grow. For this you can never get anything as startling in its results as the following mixture. To hair a pint of alcohol add half a pint of water (or else you may use a full pint of bay rum if you wish), and to this add one ounce of beta-quinol. It has a powerful action upon the hair-cells, hair roots and the scalp. It means a transformation to any hair and scalp. Your hair will be healthy, vigorous, fluffy, and grow luxuriantly.

HARRIET R.—A skin rejuvenator of a remarkable power is a cream made of dissolving two tablespoonfuls of glycerine and one ounce of epol in a half pint of hot water. This is stirred until it cools and forms a cream. This is the most astonishing wrinkle remover I have ever used. It removes deep wrinkles and lines disappear with great rapidity. It leaves the skin plump, youthful and vigorous, and by moistening the hairs to be removed, a difference in your appearance, making you look years younger. This cream can be obtained at any drug store. This makes the most economic cream I know of.

LUCY M. N.—The only positive, quick and sure way of removing blackheads is by applying some secretan. It is impossible to assure the desired development, yet the following is worth trying, as it has been successful in many cases. A half a cup of sugar and two ounces of rosewater should be dissolved in half a pint of cold water, and of this use one teaspoonful taken three or four times a day. You can secure the secretan at any drug store.

MR. O. R.—Do not use mechanical instruments for bust development. They are usually injurious. Though it is impossible to assure the desired development, yet the following is worth trying, as it has been successful in many cases. A half a cup of sugar and two ounces of rosewater should be dissolved in half a pint of cold water, and of this use one teaspoonful taken three or four times a day. You can secure the secretan at any drug store.

MEDUSA.—There are very few shampoos worthy of the name, and only one perfect head-wash that I know. This is egcol. By dissolving one teaspoonful of this in a cup of hot water, you have a hair and scalp cleanser which is usually a half a cup of water in removing all scurf, dirt and dead skin, leaving the hair fluffy and easy to do up. The egcol can be secured at any drug store.

ANNABELL—Ordinary talcum powder does very little good in arm-pits and under the arms. It is a mere talc, which is specially medicated and which, when used, causes a moist and excessive perspiration in the arm-pits, the feet, waist, etc. It will prevent your pores from opening, and is ruined by excessive perspiration, and skin eruptions. It causes the misery and humiliation it causes. It also completely destroys odor.

MISS G. F. T.—No more powerful blood cleanser is known than a mixture of twelve ounces of granulated sugar and one ounce of arsenic with one pint of water. One or two teaspoonfuls taken after meals will stop pimples and skin eruptions. A short time after the arsenic in the original package, by the ounce at any drug store.—Advt.

MARIETTA.—No, the beauty creams you are using will never produce the desired result. There is only one real hair restorer that will remove freckles, red spots and other blemishes so properly as to surprise you. Mix two tablespoonfuls of glycerine with half a pint of hot water, and while stirring add one ounce of the cream which you can obtain at this drug store. The liberal use of this cream will give you a complexion rivaling the purity of a lily or a rose, your fondest desire.

OUR ASTROLOGER

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

HOROSCOPE FOR MONDAY, JUNE 1, 1914.

On this day it is well, astrologers declare, to avoid persons in positions of power, for the Sun bodes ill for those who ask privileges of employers or seek favors from financiers.

Under this rule there is a sign peculiarly sinister where government officials are concerned. It is foretold that scandals will develop and party dissensions will multiply among politicians.

While the Sun is exercising an evil influence the seers warn men and women to keep their own counsel and to avoid disclosing any plans that are important. It is not an unfortunate time to begin enterprises, however, if they are kept secret.

Danger from the effects of high temperature is common while this government prevails. Pleasant excursions should be avoided, as the blood is easily overheated when the chief luminary is evilly disposed toward the inhabitants of the Earth.

There is a fair omen for women. Those who are in business should be lucky today. It is an auspicious time for weddings and courtships. All social entertainments should be successful.

Actors, musicians and artists should benefit, if they are careful not to antagonize persons who employ them. The stars favor good work more than the recognition of talent.

Hotel keepers have an encouraging outlook, although it is likely that all who conduct summer resorts will sustain losses the first part of the season. Public or business success through generous manners and tactful methods are promoted during this aspect.

It is predicted that a severe storm at sea will cause loss of life this week. The augury is less direful than will be numerous from this time until late in the autumn.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have business troubles during the year. They probably will have financial experiences in all that pertain to their home life. The stars indicate that they will not be good business men, but as subjects of Gemini their fortune may be extremely bright. Girls probably will marry young and receive their fortune.

Dances at Segado's

Miss Mosley announces that the dance for the married set at Segado's will be given this and succeeding weeks on Tuesday evening instead of Thursday. Both the debutantes and married set will participate in the Tuesday evening dance and there will be no dance at Segado's on Thursday evening. The change is made so that the dance at Segado's will not conflict with the dances arranged at the Country clubs.

Lecture at University Club

The members of the University club and their friends, the members of the Atlanta branch of the Southern Association of College Women, and the members of the associations that meet at the University club, and their friends, are invited to the club, Wednesday evening, June 2, at 8 o'clock, to the first of a number of lectures on "Oriental Politics" by Dr. Roy Emerson Curtis, a member of the faculty of the University of Georgia.

These lectures are designed first to portray the political, economic, social and cultural factors determining the present condition of the far-eastern countries; (second) to give an understanding of the present trend of events in eastern Asia; and (third), to consider the importance of the activities of American interests and opportunities in that part of the world. The subject of the first lecture will be "The Oriental Point of View."

GUESTS AT BEAUTIFUL LUNCHEON AT ROAN CLIFF

LONDON, May 30.—During his recent stay in town the king has been a good deal with Queen Alexandra, scarcely any having passed without a visit by the majesty to Marlborough house. Choice flowers, generally Queen Alexandra's favorite blooms, such as roses and lilies of the valley, are frequently dispatched from Buckingham palace to Marlborough house, which during the residence of Queen Alexandra is in fact a garden, and the queen is always fragrant with the delicate blossoms that the climate can produce.

Officers Elected To Atlanta Chapter, U. D. C.

The regular meeting of the Atlanta chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, was held in the Woman's club rooms on Baker street on Thursday afternoon.

Reports were made from the chairmen of the different committees and also from the retiring officers. The treasurer reported $10.00 collected from various sources and a considerable surplus on hand.

The installation of officers was a feature of the afternoon and the following will serve for the ensuing year: Mrs. Williams McCarthy, president; Mrs. T. Stephens, first vice president; Mrs. Thomas Peters, second vice president; Mrs. F. H. P. Akers, third vice president; Mrs. Robert Blackburn, recording secretary; Mrs. James Bedell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Waddell, treasurer; Mrs. L. C. Matthews, auditor, and Mrs. Lollie Belle Wylie, historian.

The president announced that the chapter had started the C. Helen Plante scholarship fund with $100. This is for the education of Georgia girls of Confederate ancestry at the normal schools in Athens and Milledgeville.

The Barton memorial fund of $10,000 has all been raised and the school at Rabun Gap is in a flourishing condition, as reported by Miss Alice Baxter, chairman of the department.

Action was taken on the suggestion that was made to make Stone Mountain a monument to the Confederacy and it is strongly urged that all Georgia chapters if not of the entire south, will concur in this effort to perpetuate in everlasting granite the loyalty and valor of the southern people, men and women alike.

Mrs. Lollie Belle Wylie and Mrs. Peters gave very interesting talks on the old days when Stone Mountain was in its prime as a popular place of resort.

Following their festive was told by the members the interesting was told for a social hour.

Crackers Win First Contest From Barons

Elliott Dent Pitches Well and Locals Win First Game of Double Header From Barons 5 to 2—Crackers Hit Brown Hard

BY ELLIOTT DENT
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 30.—Yesterday being Saturday and a holiday, two games were scheduled to be played in Birmingham. The stands were packed to their capacity when the first game was called.

We won the first game 5 to 2 by hitting him on curly Brown in the sixth. We had early sailing thereafter. The second game was called off after the two teams had played four innings to a tie, each club having scored one run in the first inning.

Flanagan hit well in the first contest as did McConnell. Flanagan also made some great catches of difficult flies and covered lots of territory in right field.

The Crackers jumped on curly Brown in the sixth inning and scored a brace of runs. Johnson took over the helm and we scored one more off him but he held us safe after the sixth.

Golfers Meet To Battle for Southern Title

Experts Look for Most Stubbornly Contested Championship Fight in History of the Southern Association

(Special dispatch to The Journal.)
MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 30.—Fully 300 golfing experts from all portions of the south are expected to drive off here Tuesday morning in the qualifying round of the thirtieth annual championship meeting of the Southern Golf Association. Prospective candidates for the Dixie title began arriving in Memphis Friday morning with a steady stream continuing through the day for the following Sunday.

Predictions as to one of the largest meetings ever held by the association have been rife during the past winter but directors and officers of the organization now state that all signs point not only to one of the largest tournaments with regard to attendance, but that the championship will see one of the most stubbornly contested fights since the southern association was first conceived thirteen years ago.

The advent last winter of half dozen clubs from Texas and the admission of numerous country clubs from other parts of the south will go to make up an attendance of more than ordinary.

With winter practice possible for the Texas prospects, there now looms up very strong probability that some high class playing other than from New Orleans, which city has been heretofore the only one in which golf during the colder months has been possible.

SIXTY FROM TEXAS.
The Texas delegation is coming about 60 strong. Reports from the some seven visiting experts from that state say that every possible effort will be made to overtop the meeting with Lone Star state players.

In addition, New Orleans golfers have arrived for a round on the local course preliminary to the tournament. The most portion of the western players these from Arkansas and Texas are expected to be in the line.

"STEAMER" (STEVE) FLANAGAN IS THE SILENT MAN OF THE LOCAL PENNANT-HUNTING OUTFIT

BY ELLIOTT DENT
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 30.—The local pennant-hunting outfit, the "Steamer" (Steve) Flanagan, is the silent man of the outfit. He is the one who has been the most successful in the past few years.

Flanagan hit well in the first contest as did McConnell. Flanagan also made some great catches of difficult flies and covered lots of territory in right field.

The Crackers jumped on curly Brown in the sixth inning and scored a brace of runs. Johnson took over the helm and we scored one more off him but he held us safe after the sixth.

Wright Wins Tennis Title

NEW ORLEANS, May 30.—Living Wright, of Boston, became southern singles tennis champion today when he defeated Ramond Phelps, of New Orleans, in the final match of the southern tournament which began here Monday.

The scores were 7-5, 6-1, 6-2. He is the first to win the title since 1908.

Phelps played a strong game in the first set. The speed and accuracy of his serving troubled the Boston player considerably and time and again he scored with long drives to the back line. Wright finally won the set with clever handwork and persistent hitting to the right.

In the second set Wright was in easy fashion. Phelps attempted to play a cautious game at the expense of speed, but only succeeded in giving Wright a chance to display his cleverness at placing. Wright placed Phelps' slow returns first to the right, then to the left and then back to the right for the point. All during the second set Wright's play was brilliant.

After winning a consolation match in the semi-finals, from A. Grima, of New Orleans, A. C. Adams, of Dallas, allowed the final match to go to S. Fehlbauer, of New Orleans by default. Phelps had defeated R. T. Morris, of New Orleans, in the semi-finals.

Finals in three matches are expected to be played this afternoon.

Phelan Cobb Now Hits Among Batters Of Am. League

Baron Has Average .412 for Fifteen Games, Wagner Picks Up .375 During Week

Phelan Cobb, who has been in the Atlanta club for some time, has been making a name for himself in the American League. He has been hitting like a champion, and his average of .412 for fifteen games is a record. Wagner, who has been in the Atlanta club for some time, has been making a name for himself in the American League. He has been hitting like a champion, and his average of .375 during the week is a record.

Recent injuries which have kept Cobb out of the game have served to diminish the gap between the Peach and the league leaders in batting. While Tyus has been on the shelf, Crawford and Jackson have permitted a few points to be shaved off their averages. Cobb, who has been in the Atlanta club for some time, has been making a name for himself in the American League. He has been hitting like a champion, and his average of .412 for fifteen games is a record.

The past week was a bad one for the batters in the American league and as a result a number slipped from grace. Cobb, who has been in the Atlanta club for some time, has been making a name for himself in the American League. He has been hitting like a champion, and his average of .412 for fifteen games is a record.

HEALTH OF OLD ATHLETES JARS WEAK HEART THEORY

(BY W. A. COLLINGS)

NEW YORK, May 30.—Since the selection of Hannes Kolehmainen by a Brooklyn fraternal organization because of a weak heart, many have inquired whether or not all athletes are afflicted with that malady. Secretary James E. Sullivan, of the A. A. U., comes to the front with the proofs that a great number of champions of a weak heart, many have inquired whether or not all athletes are afflicted with that malady. Secretary James E. Sullivan, of the A. A. U., comes to the front with the proofs that a great number of champions of a weak heart, many have inquired whether or not all athletes are afflicted with that malady.

Summing through the A. A. U. intercollegiate championships, he found the names of many American athletes, actively engaged in business, that showed the class some thirty-odd years ago.

Mr. Sullivan was anxious to know why it is that "enlarged or athlete hearts" affect some athletes and miss up a great majority. He admitted that he did not know, but he made statements made by doctors in relation to the shortening of an athlete's life because of the "terrible" strain on their hearts.

"This matter should be handled with kid gloves," declared Mr. Sullivan. "I do not want to be put in a position of disagreeing with doctors, because they are the best business men I see. I am frank to say that in some cases the physicians are all wrong. Going back thirty years ago, we find a list of many names of real athletes who have refused to bow to Father Time. Nearly every day I run into one or two of them, and if a handshake and a smile on the face are any criterion of good health, then they certainly are blessed with it."

For one who will present Everett Hanson Wendell, who once came before at Harvard twenty-five odd years ago, he belongs to a family of athletes. To see Mr. Wendell timing and officiating at intercollegiate championships is a treat in itself. He is a member of several important A. A. U. committees and rushes to Europe now and then in the capacity of one of Uncle Sam's delegates to international meetings for Olympic games.

He is only one of the athletes brought out. When he was a student at Cambridge, Mr. Wendell performed in stunts and form and competed as often as he could.

Harry Buermeyer is the oldest living champion. In the sixties Mr. Buermeyer held the upper hand, just like Kolehmainen, John Paul Jones, Howard Drew and some others whose names before the public right now. He is about seventy years old but can outstep a young man.

There is no reason to see him running around the New York A. C. taking in the boxing bouts and telling stories of the days when he was a champion.

THE "BONES" THAT PLAYERS PULL LIVE AFTER THEM

BY REXLEY.

Speaking of "bones," which is a vernacular for "homeless players," or players, did you ever notice that the successes of the winners are matched by the peculiar misfortunes of the losers, and that the latter have a prominence of their own scarcely inferior to that of the former? Some players will always be remembered for the misdeeds that they made rather than the brilliant plays they were wont to figure in.

"The had that men do lives after them, the good is oft interred with their bones; so let it be with ball players." The "homeless" play has an unique circus play if it had gone through, and vice versa.

Of course, you have all heard of the celebrated John Anderson, one of the oldest and best known members of the ancient order of homeless heroes. Jew's name will never die. Although there have been many others since who were able to duplicate the feat that made Jew's name one to censure bones with, it is doubtful if his star will ever fade. John Anderson was the first ball player who ever succeeded in stealing second with "bones."

More recent is the performance of Merkle that is too well known to repeat; his failure to touch second base in that game against the Chicago Cubs at the Polo grounds September 23, 1908, while cost the Giants a match. Merkle was the victim of circumstances, more than anything else, as what Merkle did in that game has been hundreds of times by players in all leagues. Merkle was unfortunate—that was all.

Yet it was probably the greatest home in baseball. Harry Niles was another player famous for his tendency to pull homeless plays. While playing with the Boston Red Sox against Washington back in 1909 Harry was at his best. The Red Sox were one run behind, two out, and Danzig on first. Niles hit a terrific drive toward center field and with his head down he started to tear around the bases. Niles was a very fast man and Danzig was not, and Harry forgetting that there was a runner ahead of him whirled around the bases and pulled up at third. Danzig in his mean time had halted at second. Niles having gone by him like a streak of lightning. When the smoke cleared away Niles was declared out for passing a runner and Boston's chance to win had flickered.

Last year it was Ivy Wingo, of St. Louis, who starred. Ivy's bit of brilliance was an infraction in his third with the bases full.

In 1907 the entire Washington and Chicago teams were guilty of one huge "bone." Larry Schaff, then captain of the Washington, now manager of the Buffalo Bells, had retired to the clubhouse to change his trousers, which he had tied in sliding to base. Before Larry returned his side had been retired and Chicago was at bat. The Washington then took the field and the game went on—that is, all but Larry.

Another one on Harry Niles. With the bases full and only one out, the men on the bench were hit out to Niles. The fans heaved a sigh of relief when he caught the ball, but it immediately turned to a roar of surprise when they saw Niles stick the ball in his pocket and tear across the field to the clubhouse, while his teammates ran after him.

Niles, of course, thought that three were out, but it did not prevent the three men on base from scoring and winning the game for the opposition.

They happen every day—these are a few of the most famous ones. But nine times out of ten the term "bonehead" is an injustice to the player.

Hups Sold Stay Sold

Have you ever heard a Hupmobile owner say anything but good of his car?
Haven't you noticed that when he wants to dispose of it to get a new one, he never has any difficulty in so doing?
Haven't you observed how willing any dealer is to take a Hup in trade at a good figure---and how few of them you see on the floor of the second-hand dealer?
If you haven't noticed these things ask any Hup owner---and you'll get the answer as to why Hups sold stay sold.

Ask Any Hupmobilst

The Hupmobile's reputation for lesser maintenance cost, for longer life, and for a higher cash value in the second-hand market is founded on the experience of Hup owners.

It is not a thing of recent growth. It is as old as the Hupmobile itself.

Owners of other cars can't understand the Hup owner's intense loyalty and enthusiasm for his car.

Their own experience knows no such economy as typifies the month-in and month-out use of the Hup.

They see Hup owners actually going out of their way to make Hupmobile sales to their best friends.

You can easily verify all this, possibly in your own neighborhood. A chat with a Hup owner will reveal to you phases of economy and car service you have never perceived.

The Hupmobile dealer can give you scores of names and specific instances equally enlightening and convincing.

See Tires Made At Midnight Jennings Likes Tigers' Chances

Kansas. "Boosters" Have Unique Experience at Goodrich Tire Factory

Automobile tires turned out by the hundreds at midnight in a rubber factory which had nearly half a hundred acres of floor space running full blast at the midnight hour featured a recent visit of 150 Southeast Kansas "boosters" to Akron, Ohio.

The Akron motorists (cut cuttings a car from one piece of land) saw through the east carrying growing crops in a display car. They took Kansas had not suffered from drought-rainwater drought. That is, they took in the factory of the R. P. Goodrich company at night and spent three hours traveling part of the plant's twenty-five acres of floor space. They expressed astonishment that the factory was running twenty-four hours a day.

"Why do you have to make tires at night?" one of the "boosters" asked a guide.

"So the day shift can get some sleep," was the answer.

The visitors found shop stores in many parts of the Goodrich plant headed "safety first" and cautioning employees to protect themselves and their fellow workers by using care in the handling of machines.

"That looks good to me," said R. R. Mumford, president of the organization boosting southeast Kansas. "If you put safety on the inside of your plant and the outside of your tires, you've got a pretty good combination." The delegation stayed a long time in the cord tire room, where the new Goodrich Silvertown tires were being made. They said they had never seen a tire made like that before, and were very extensive tire users.

"That looks like a 'top tire' to me," said as they watched the intricate machine putting layers of rubber filled out on the tire with an almost human deftness.

The visitors took away with them vast assortment of Goodrich road maps, touring guides applicable to their own section and rules of the road.

Motor Riders Want New Tax

At the meeting of the Georgia legislature, which convenes in June, the Federation of American Motorcyclists, its local members and officials, with the aid of Mr. Phil Cook, secretary of state, will bring before that body an amendment to the present automobile tax, which also covers motorcycles. They will ask that the motorcycle be separated from the automobile and that a special tax be made to cover motorcycles only. From the reports that have been received through the Georgia legislature, it is believed that the amendment will be passed.

The present tax of $5 placed on motorcycles is unjust. At the present time, licenses that have been bought for motorcycles it has been under protest, which was placed before the secretary of state by Mr. Gas Castle, manager of the Harley-Davidson Motor company branch here, representing the F. A. M. and all motorcycle riders in the state of Georgia. It is very probable that under this present all tags that have been bought will be made to hold good through the years 1914 and 1915, which will be a satisfactory arrangement for all those who have bought tags under the present $5 charge.

Castle Returns From Factory

Gus Castle, manager of the southern branch of the Harley-Davidson Motor company, returned from the factory at Milwaukee last Monday, where he had been for ten days previous, going over various matters regarding the sale of the Harley-Davidson in the seven southern states. The heads of the factory were greatly pleased with the results obtained at their southern branch since he had been in Milwaukee.

It was opened last November, as the up to date in advance of their best expectations. The sales for 1914, up to May 15, showed an increase of 110 per cent over the entire year of 1913 of the Harley-Davidson in the seven southern states. This enormous sale of Harley-Davidsons in the south will probably exceed the sale of any other motorcycle sold in the south, or since establishing a branch of the Harley-Davidson motorcycle here their product has taken the lead.

While in Milwaukee quite a number of people whom Mr. Castle met, knowing that he came from Atlanta, were all greatly pleased with the results of the Harley-Davidson in the south, and while they were here it appeared that the holding of the Shiner convention in Atlanta is one of the biggest advertisements that Atlanta could have had. The general comment of people was that Atlanta is a wide-awake and progressive city and that the holding of the Shiner convention in Atlanta had certainly put her on the map in good, strong style. There was nothing but praise on all sides scattered by the returning Shiner.

The motorcycle business in general throughout the south has been exceedingly large, and all makers are planning to invade the south the coming year, as they look to the south for a future big business in motorcycles.

Firestone Co. Enlarges Plant

In order to meet the rapidly increasing demand for their product, the Firestone Tire and Rubber company are again adding new additions to their plant at Akron, Ohio.

When Mr. H. S. Firestone put his final O. K. on the plans for the new building in 1910, it seemed that this vast new large expansion of the company's needs for years to come. The new building was completed and occupied in 1911.

In 1912, it was necessary to again expand and new additions were made to the original building and the new additions do not impair in any way the efficiency of the product.

During 1913 three new rollers were installed, having a capacity of 800-horsepower each, making 2,700-horsepower in addition to their already large roller capacity. These were ready for use by February, 1914, and have been in continuous use since that time.

The Firestone company will install a new 4,000 kilowatt generator and steam turbine to furnish additional power needed for the extensions. Their present switch board will be replaced by a new gallery board, seventy feet in length.

After experimenting for over two years with cycle tires, until Mr. Firestone was satisfied that the company could turn out a cycle tire equally as good as the automobile tire, they have recently commenced manufacturing this new product. They are spreading out on this department as fast as possible in order to take care of the rapidly increasing demand for their cycle tires.

These tires are made with two styles of tread, the non-skid, which is an exact reproduction of the automobile non-skid tread, and also a corrugated tread.

North Fulton boulevards. The barbecue will be held at the Polson place, on Peachtree road, beyond Silver Lake, and those who are unable to join the party will be invited to proceed direct to Polson's by noon.

Owing to the large increase in the use of Indian motorcycles during the present year, it is estimated that fully 125 motorcycles will be sold. Extensive arrangements have been made to care for the large number of motorcycles and to guarantee their maintenance.

The Advent of the Cyclecar organization management that can be had. The result is a car which is second to none in comfort and touring speed, irrespective of price, while no better material or workmanship is found on any big car manufactured.

NEGOTIATES ALL ROADS.

Rough roads which force the biggest cars to slow down have no terrors for The Scripps-Booth, and without any tendency to throw the passengers from their seats.

ECONOMY OF LIGHT WEIGHT.

If you halve the weight on an automobile, you give the tires four times the life. A complete set of cyclecar tires should last over 10,000 miles, and 30 to 35 miles per gallon of gas, is an easy accomplishment with The Scripps-Booth narrow tread undershock cyclecar.

Another year will see thousands of these cyclecars on the roads in and about your city, used by owners for pleasure and sport, by business firms for salesmen and collectors, and that type of employment now uses the street car, and by small and large business firms for quick packing and delivery.

It is more than probable that within less than four years more cyclecars will be seen on the road than big cars.

GREATER COMFORT AND SPEED WITH LESS NOISE.

The 26-inch tread car traveling between the ruts consumes less horsepower than does a wider tread vehicle when it strikes a bump on one side, having a wheel base very long in proportion, there is very little tendency to side sway, and all of the power of the motor, or nearly all, is expended in forward thrust. In other words, when one wheel of the car strikes a bump, there is less momentum absorbed than would be the case in a wide tread car. For this reason the Scripps-Booth Cyclecar with 10-horsepower motor has the speed of standard tread cars with 20-horsepower motors, and on account of the low hung weight and narrow tread, and having 100-inch wheel base are showing greater comfort. The Scripps-Booth is made very light in weight and yet has great structural strength on account of the patented twisting stresses throughout the mechanism. The 100-inch wheel base on this 26-inch tread is equal in comfort and performance to a 130-inch wheel base of 66-inch tread car. The road comfort allows speeds which are impossible to the small automobile.

THE ORGANIZATION.

The Scripps-Booth Cyclecar company is a financially strong organization, and knows the real value of these new type vehicles, over $100,000 having been spent before manufacture started. This money was spent on experimental cars in tests, on trips to Europe for the latest material and practice in building machinery, dies, etc., and in thorough systematizing. In order that the product should be up to date automobile plant. Double heat treated drop forgings are used, and all parts are made to micronometer, and every modern manufacturing method is used to give the Scripps-Booth the highest quality of economy and life.

THE PROOF IS A DEMONSTRATION.

The Scripps-Booth Cyclecar as an all round road vehicle has proved itself out, beyond all expectations of comfort and roadability. Secure a demonstration and you will become convinced.

MOTOR.

The Debus Motor is the finest in quality and workmanship. The connecting rods are carried on roller bearings and the crankshaft on Hex-Bright ball bearings. All valves are mechanically operated. Cylinders anti-rusted, bored and ground to size. Aluminum crank case spot finished.

Specifications.

The Scripps-Booth Cyclecar enters full fledged into a commanding position. The product of a noted house and time tested through experimental stages, presenting a remarkable record.

Splendid Service From the Board of Education.

For its splendid work in reconstructing and modernizing Atlanta's public school system, the Board of Education is due unstinted praise from everyone who is interested in the community's well-being. We have frequently had occasion to criticize the methods of municipal boards, when they subordinated business to politics and conducted large affairs on petty lines; but the record of the present Board of Education stands out as an exemplar of the finest ideals and the most efficient service of men charged with a public trust.

No institution touches the interests of citizenship and home more vitally than do our public schools. Atlanta will never rise higher than its public schools, for, they are the training camp of the rank and file of the men and women who are to make the city whatever it becomes. The development of the public schools, therefore, means the upbuilding and the progress of this community. The changes which the Board of Education have planned and are to inaugurate at the beginning of the next scholastic term will usher in a new era of educational service and growth. They will place our grammar schools and high schools abreast the highest standards in the country. They will open new opportunities for the children and the teachers, and will effect great economies in energy and time.

It is peculiarly gratifying to note that the working out of this program has had the hearty co-operation of every member of the Board of Education, and that it is assured the cordial support of the Superintendent and all the teachers. The people of Atlanta should recognize the excellent work that has been done and be being done in their behalf, and should uphold in every possible way the forward movement that has been undertaken.

Where Georgia Comes In.

The agricultural appropriation bill, which has passed the House and has been favorably reported in the Senate, provides for the expenditure of some fifteen million dollars. Of this fund, the share allotted to the South and to Georgia is especially liberal. It is estimated that Georgia's farming interests will benefit to the extent of a million dollars through the experiment and demonstration work that will be conducted in this State.

For these advantages, we are indebted to the constructive program of the Democratic administration, which has emphasized from the outset the importance of rural needs. It is noteworthy, too, that Georgia is represented on the agriculture committee in both branches of Congress—in the Senate by Senator Hoke Smith, and in the House by Congressman Gordon Lee. Each of them has been constantly alert to the interests of the State, and though asking no more than was due, they have seen to it that the State's rights were fully recognized.

Furthermore, Georgia's wide range of climate and elevation makes her a potential producer of practically all the crops that are grown in this country. She has nice distinct zones of temperature, and a wonderful variety of soils. She can raise oranges in the south and apples in the north. Corn and wheat as well as cotton will flourish on her acres, and her natural opportunities for animal husbandry are scarcely exceeded in the entire Union. And so it happens that to whatever province of agriculture the federal government turns its attention, Georgia looms up as a profitable field for research and experiment.

In addition to the funds provided in the agricultural appropriation bill, this State will share also in those of the Smith-Lever agricultural extension law, under which ten thousand dollars a year is given each State unconditionally for farm demonstration work; and if our Legislature meets the national government half way, twenty-five thousand dollars more for the same purpose can be secured. This money means education; it means fresh opportunity and enterprise; it means new thought and energy for the development of Georgia's vast stores of natural treasure and for the enrichment of her people.

The President Is Right.

PRESIDENT WILSON wisely urges that the trust question be disposed of at the present session of Congress. Nothing, as he says, is more dangerous to business than uncertainty. So long as this issue is in suspense, industry and commerce will remain hesitant; so soon as it is settled upon lines of justice and moderation, they will move confidently forward. Trust legislation there must be, sooner or later; the party's pledge must be redeemed, the country's conscience must be satisfied, the abuse of monopoly must be broken, and the rights of all honest enterprises vouchsafed. These duties are to be performed, not as an attack upon business interests, but as a service to business welfare and freedom; and, far from discouraging activity, they will hearten and assure every field of our economic life.

Why, then, defer this wholesome and constructive work? Why hang back from doing what everyone knows must be done and will be done? Why not end the uncertainty now? Why not, as the President has expressed it, "do the thing moderately and soberly now, instead of waiting until more radical forces have accumulated and it is necessary to do much further?"

If a revolutionary or radical program of trust legislation were proposed, it would be necessary to move slowly; but just the contrary is true. The spirit and purpose of the pending bills were well described in the President's message last January when he said: "Fortunately, no measures of sweeping or novel change are needed. It will be understood that our object is not to unsettle business, or anywhere seriously to break its established courses. On the contrary, we desire the laws we are now about to pass to be bulwarks and safeguards of industry against the forces that have disturbed it. . . . What must every candid man say of the suggestions I have laid before you, of the plain obligations of which I have reminded you? That these are new things for which the country is not prepared? No; but that they are old things, now familiar, and must of course be undertaken, if we are to square our laws with the thought and desire of the country. Until these things are done, conscientious business men will be unsatisfied."

And until they are done, business movements will remain hampered and uncertain. Peace and prosperity are not assured by putting off those questions that perplex and disturb a nation, but by meeting them squarely and settling them promptly. Everyone agrees that the settlement of the tariff issue was distinctly helpful to business; even those manufacturers who opposed certain schedules in the revision are glad that the discussion is ended, and would not now reopen it. The settlement of the banking and currency issue brought instant improvement in business conditions, and the new system was accepted by the entire country as a guarantee of better times.

In like manner the settlement of the trust question will be followed by a feeling of relief and security. When business knows just what to expect, to what standards of law and government it must conform, the lines of readjustment will be complete, and the new freedom and certitude will be fully ushered in.

The pending trust bills, as we have said, are not revolutionary; rather, they are designed to clarify the existing law and to solve certain problems that have long been a source of agitation. If Congress, especially the Democrats in Congress, will apply itself to this task with due energy and in the proper spirit, the bills can be enacted within the next thirty or forty days, and the country will enjoy genuine repose. Business will know precisely what are its duties, its opportunities; and the coming autumn will deepen upon a nation free from doubt and tranquility bent upon its lawful tasks.

If, on the other hand, the trust question is carried over until next winter, there will be continued uncertainty and, perhaps, growing unrest. The winter session will be crowded with other matters of deep importance. A rural credits bill must then be enacted, and a number of measures in the administration's program for conserving and developing the country's natural resources must be dealt with. There will be less time and opportunity to put through the trust legislation next winter than there is today, when the decks have been cleared for this one, all-important duty. Present delay, therefore, would mean future delay. It would mean that business interests would be kept in prolonged, if not indefinite suspense.

The President states a fact when he says there is no material or substantial reason why the business of the country should not be in the most prosperous and expanding condition. There is promise of a wheat crop more bounteous than America has ever known. There is the immediate guarantee of the new banking and currency system under which financial panics will be virtually impossible. There is the prospect of an early, and it is believed, a favorable decision from the Interstate Commerce Commission on the railroads' appeal for an advance in freight rates. The underlying sources and conditions of prosperity are secure.

The fact is, this country today is not to be likened to a patient recovering from drastic surgery and dreading a new operation, but rather to a strong man who is bent upon a fruitful journey, and whose setting forth waits only upon a clear outline of the path he is to follow. Let Congress end this uncertainty by enacting the trust bills at the present session, and business will move forward.

The Smokeless Locomotive?

From Cincinnati, comes tidings of a great discovery—a locomotive which doesn't smoke within the city limits, or which, if it smokes at all, does so with due regard to the public's comfort and health. Officials say that the device adopted for this purpose works steadily and well, and affords a remedy for one of the direst nuisances American cities suffer.

The Times-Star remarks in this connection that "after the great frosts of last year, when most of the local railroads were out of commission, Cincinnati's atmosphere became clear as if by magic" and that if the faith of those who have observed the new appliance is justified, "there will be enough force in public opinion to compel its general adoption."

Certain it is that the smoke trouble in most cities lies largely in the railroads. Atlanta's smoke inspector declares in his annual report that the locomotive is the most difficult problem to handle, from both the engineering and the official standpoint. "Nobody," he says, "has yet developed any equipment that will satisfactorily control the smoke from all classes of locomotive and under all operating conditions. Consequently the only way to determine the efficiency of any such device is to try it, and that is a tedious and expensive process. The official handling lines in the traditional reluctance of railroads to submit to any form of statutory regulation that they consider inconvenient, and in the impracticability of dealing directly and conclusively with any one official of a railroad."

It cannot be doubted, however, that persistent campaigning will eventually bring results in this as in other spheres of the smoke problem. Some years ago it was hotly denied that any form of smoke regulation was practicable, yet we find a number of cities that have reduced smoke to a negligible amount so far as stationary plants are concerned; and there are railroads, though unfortunately rare, that have made substantial progress in this reform.

Second-Hand Culture.

"Too often we are not seeking knowledge,
but the appearance of knowledge. We read reviews, not as a guide to books, but in order to be able to talk about books without the trouble of reading them. We read books about books by Owen Jones just when we should read him, and he left a trail of song.
By hedgerow and by cottage,
The Irish way we find
O'Willie, Willie Alligam,
'Tis you, for you, we fret,
'Tis you, for you, we fret,
The mournful for you yet."

This wholesome bit of criticism comes from the Chicago Tribune by way of comment on a recent remark of that famous Danish critic and prince of letters, George Brandes. During his visit to the United States, Mr. Brandes was asked, "What do you think of American literature?" "American literature," he answered, "Why, yes. But I shall not talk about it any more until—well! I could discuss Robert Herrick, and William Dean Howells and Poe, and others. I have done so, but I find it quite useless. I will not waste time discussing books with people who haven't read the books. In all countries and in all times there have doubtless been men and women who affected the phrases and colors of culture, with no understanding of its spirit; even among Chaucer's pilgrims on the road to Canterbury there was the lawyer who 'seemed wiser than he was.' But there was ever a time or a country where the parody of learning was carried so far as in America today."

Our get-rich-quick schemes are few and modest beside our get-wise-quick devices. The great ambition is to be able to talk of Hergson and Maseloff, or of anthropology and the latest anesthetic; as for really thinking of them and studying them—why, we haven't time for that. And truth to tell we haven't the inclination. The great thing is to have an opinion, and to make it known as impressively and as frequently as possible. To be ignorant, or rather to confess ignorance, on any subject is extremely bad form. Play the game, mould the fine phrases—that is elegance and culture.

There may be little harm in imposing this deceit upon others, but there is a vast deal of harm in imposing it upon ourselves. The old Prussian quartermaster, who was asked by his general how the cost of feeding his soldiers might be reduced, answered, "Give them half an hour longer at the mess;" from which wise counsel we learn that a page directed is better than a volume devoted. One evening with the thinker himself is better than a week with those who write merely about him. If a man upon finding himself in the Alps should shut himself in a hotel, and spend his days reading guide books, he would be foolish indeed. All about us, are the enchanting mountains of literature. Why be content with conning their names when we could breathe their air and grow wise with the vision of their noble distances?

"THE WORLD SET FREE"

BY DR. FRANK STOKES.
(Copyright, 1914, by Frank Crane.)

Mr. H. G. Wells, in "The World Set Free," a volume fresh from the Dutton publishing house, gives us another of his amazing compounds, of science and fiction, as is that of Wells. You ought to read them both.

In Wells' tale, as in Stockton's, the climax comes by the invention of an explosive so terrible that its effect is utter annihilation.

Wells describes his bombs as "continuing explosives"; that is, they do not go off in one detonation but continue to exert ruinous "atomic energy" indefinitely.

They are "lumps of pure cyclonator, painted on the outside with unoxidized dyonator indurated enclosed hermetically in a case of membranum." Whatever that means.

"Always before," he says, "the shells fired had gone off in an instant, once for all; then, they were spread and over. But cyclonator contained a furious radiation of energy, and nothing could arrest it."

When a bomb of this stuff was fired from an aeroplane it reached the earth, it mainly solid and, melting soil and rock in its progress, bored into the earth, became a miniature volcano, and sent up showers of deadly missiles. It was absolutely unapproachable and could not be put out until its forces were nearly exhausted.

It is described how these bombs were dropped on London, Paris and Berlin by adventurous aviators, and the three capitals were eliminated.

In sheer desperation the rulers of earth met somewhere in Switzerland, abolished nationalism, established a World State, confiscated all existing armaments and factories, and the economic regulation of mankind was put under a new and more humane national suicide.

They say sound as a strange and fantastic tale. But already, in fact, Giulio Ulivi, the young Florentine inventor, has demonstrated that he can blow up a mine buried in the sea, or a submarine, or any explosive encased in metal, by means of his electric ultraviolet rays, effective anywhere within a radius of fifty miles.

Is the human race really so stupid that it must wait for scientific advances of indescribable horror to see the utter folly of war?

Must we waste through hell to lure ourselves of the fatuousness of militarism, and then come to the "parliament of man, the federation of the world," not by reason, but by the use of the devil?

The Lost Poet

BY KATE LOUISE BROWN.

Oh, pleasant was the sunshine
And blithe the windy ways!
A postcard went abroad
Through all the cheerful days.
O how just were his words,
He left a trail of song.
By hedgerow and by cottage,
The Irish way we find
O'Willie, Willie Alligam,
'Tis you, for you, we fret,
'Tis you, for you, we fret,
The mournful for you yet."

Some king of blood and battle,
And some of want and woe;
'Tis you'll have to get them,
Wherever you go.
But Willie sings of flowers,
And some-voice of a bird,
And all his songs have sunshine
And pleasant, cooing words.
O'Willie, Willie Alligam,
'Tis you, for you, we fret,
'Tis you, for you, we fret,
The mournful for you yet."

They say you went to London,
And there found prosperous ways;
Found friends and favor, ah! you said,
And plenty money in your purse.
Why, everything you wanted
Came runnin' at your call!
Back home, you're forgotten
Back here in Donegal!

O'Willie, Willie Alligam,
'Tis you, for you, we fret,
'Tis you, for you, we fret,
The mournful for you yet."

O, singer of the sunshine,
Oh, clime of the sunny hills!
They say the earth is lovin'
All cold upon your brow;

But that that lovin' wander,
Alas! are restin' still,
No more they speak the hedgerows
Or climb the windy hills!

O'Willie, Willie Alligam,
'Tis you, for you, we fret,
'Tis you, for you, we fret,
The mournful for you yet."

"The Real Thing"

In the next few weeks the thousand young people who are to be graduated from what we call
"our institutions of learning," are going to be deluged with advice from wise men in baccalaureate sermons and commencement addresses. Perhaps they won't mind this bit of additional advice from a newspaper that doesn't make any pretensions to wisdom.

Young men and women of the graduating age are apt to be dazzled by the appearance of smartness.
A young fellow once confessed that he was well on in his career before he ceased to read a Vast Dyke beard as an evidence of unusual mental ability.

There is an impression that needs experience to correct that more smartness is pretty much all there is to the game; and this smartness is usually supposed to be accomplished with a degree of selfishness and disregard for the rights of others.

But that sort of smartness is a poor foundation to build a career upon. The permanent value of a passion for sincerity, for the substantial, the excellent —for what we call "the real thing!"
One house may look much finer than another when they are new. But the first is substantially built with portland cement in the foundations and chimneys, with heavy timbers, with diagonal bracing, honest and workmanlike throughout. The second is hastily and cheaply thrown together. In a few years the second house will begin to show up for what it is, and the first always will be good.

The same distinction runs all through life. In every line of activity there is inane effort, in contrast to the real thing. Some men constitutionally dislike the exercise they are ever ready to find a sidewalk or putting up a house—they may build a lath and stucco chimney instead of one of brick or stone or cement, or whatever. For them, the they may get away with it. But in the long run they are found out and the quality of their work is shown up.

Young people just going out into life have a chance to cultivate the substantial qualities, to win by merit, or they may try to bluff their way through. But in the long run bluff doesn't work.—Kansas City Star.

THE BRITISH CRISIS

XX.—Of Two Rebellions—Which?
BY FREDERICK J. HARKIN.

DUBLIN.—With civil war threatening, Britain has not the capital of the world, and the rebels are avoiding the issue. It is a penalty of imperial greatness that sometimes the throne is shaken by a quarrel of two retainers. That is the trouble here now.

It may be asked—indeed, it is asked every day—why should the rebels not put Ulster in arms and endangered the civil peace of the country, and the government withdraw the bill and restore peace. Ulster would be unwilling to give up their government to retain its self-respect and throw up the sponge while remaining in office; but this is all the better reason why the government should resist and leave the question to a general election.

The opposition gives three reasons why the government does not consent to a general election at this stage of the trouble. The first is that the rebellion would not consent to "go to the country," and that is that such a course would make the parliament an acknowledgment of the fact that the bill would not pass. The second is that they know the Ulsterists would win. And the third is that the government is afraid not to carry out the bargain made at the time of the 1906 election to put home rule through under the parliament act.

The average Liberal in an English city will tell you that there is only one reason why the government should not consent to a general election. It is that such a course would make the parliament an acknowledgment of the fact that the bill would not pass. The second is that they know the Ulsterists would win. And the third is that the government is afraid not to carry out the bargain made at the time of the 1906 election to put home rule through under the parliament act.

All of which reasons are more or less interesting and more or less true, perhaps.

But the real reason why the government doesn't dare ditch home rule to avert civil war is to be found in Dublin and in all other parts of the southern provinces of Ireland. The reason resolves itself into some thousands of votes, varying from 10,000 to 200,000 of Irish Nationalist voters.

The Ulster volunteers who say they will fight against home rule have threatened civil war. If the government surrenders to them and abandons home rule, then the Irish volunteers who say they will fight for home rule.

Of the two rebellions—which?

Against Ulster the government—that is, the present Liberal government—cannot use the army, with any sense of security. The army, at least its officers and non-commissioned ranks, is in sympathy with the Ulster rebels, or the Ulster "loyalists," if you prefer to say it that way.

But if this government were to go out, either by submitting to a general election, and losing, or by any accident of a reversal in the commonsense, the conservative party would come into power. Naturally, they would kill home rule the first thing.

Then the Irish volunteers would rise, and the army would be ordered out to quell the disturbance, and the army, not being in sympathy with the Irish Nationalists, would do it.

Then the labor men in England, who hate the army, and who have questioned its loyalty, and who have supported home rule, would what they do? A general strike for sympathy, and a more civil war?

As a matter of fact, the government believes that some settlement can be made with Ulster that will prevent the clash over the home rule enactment. The ministerial offer of a vote for temporary exclusion by counties for six years was rejected by the Ulster leaders. Federalism (of which there will be more in a later article) may furnish the solution without a resort to arms.

But if there is to be no settlement, the government undoubtedly would prefer to fight against Ulster—that is, the Ulster Liberal—than against the other four-fifths of Ireland, and the rebels were that other four-fifths again angered and inflamed by being beaten out of home rule when it was almost within their grasp.

Another thing. The present Liberal government would, if worst came to worst, prefer to risk an Ulster rebellion to backing down before the lords just when the rebellion was about to be invoked for the first time. They fought two general elections to get the power of the lords reduced, and even now it requires two long and three secondary elections to circumvent the constant Conservative majority in the upper house.

To give all this up at this time would be from the Liberal point of view, not only to confess that the two million Irish irregulars in Ulster are more regular in the red coats, were superior to parliament, and prepared a final veto; but it would be treating their Irish supporters as partners in a manner that no honorable man could excuse.

This Liberal point of view is based altogether, of course, on their belief that they obtained a clear mandate from the people with respect to the veto. The Ulsterists deny this, and demand a general election before the kingdoms are separated, that the people may have a chance to vote on the proposition.

Before the last election Mr. Asquith said in a speech in the highest hall in London that the government, if returned, would grant home rule to Ireland. It is true that it was not the chief issue; the veto of the lords was the chief issue. But Lord Lansdowne and Mr. Balfour, both leaders of the Ulsterists, led the voters from the stamp in that campaign that it was the deliberate intention of the Liberals to put home rule through under the new parliament act.

Here comes in a peculiar fact. When the parliament act was passed it was worded so as to permit the disavowal of the veto by passing a bill in three successive sessions of parliament, whether of the same or different parliaments. This was permitted to parliament to dissolve, and the rebellion without interrupting the course of a bill on its way to the lords, by an unforeseen vote of the commonsense by some other means, this section was so phrased as to require full sessions of parliament. As a disavowal of the veto by the commonsense would be a complete session. Therefore, the bill would have to be started all over again and could not possibly become a law under two years.

Naturally, the lords and their supporters, the Ulster party, have demanded a general election on all the bills proposed. It is their one weapon left.

But even if the mandate for home rule had not been given, even if the Ulsterists are correct on this point, the far-sighted Liberals must recognize that the way out to peace cannot be found by a surrender of the home rule bill.

What would be gained in Ulster would be lost four times over in the rest of Ireland, and the veto problem of the veto by the commonsense would be a thorn deep in the side of the British political constitution.

This whole situation proves that it is dangerous to play with the veto. Two years ago the veto in home rule bill was started through the commonsense, and the lords realized they were powerless to stop it if the government could hold out. The Ulster Conservatives began to organize.

As a rule, the money a man doesn't save by remaining a bachelor would be more than enough to support a wife and ten children.

SOME NEW THINGS IN EDUCATION

By Dixon Merritt

To the man who has realized out of his own experience and observation that the thing called education has never been so badly needed in America, the work now about being undertaken by George Peabody college for teachers at Nashvilles, Tenn., seems immensely interesting. It is a big project, and not different from the things ordinarily attempted by educational institutions that were not for the $125,000 back of it, and the educators of recognized ability to charge, one would be disposed to call it an experiment.

The average American's experience with schools has been with blithering ideal institutions, with teachers that have taught the practical, work-a-day life. That is his conception of a school for higher education—something that is very grand and very lofty, but something that means precious little to him. When such a person looks over this Peabody institution, his first feeling is one of disappointment. It disappoints him. It shows him that shatters traditions and places the device with ideals.

There is an establishment having to do with it, and there isn't the first thing high flown or high flung about it. It is bold and brazenly says that it is going to teach men how to do a field of plow and a plank and women how to cook cabbage. A fellow feels like calling it a fake and a fraud, an institution that says it is educating when it is only doing anything but that, and that it is only doing things that they have to do every day.

Then the thought recurs that when he has finished the process of getting himself educated, he was not prepared for anything. It is the same thought that occurred quite some time ago in good thinkers in the educational field—that the American system of education, if there can properly be said to be such a thing, has never really educated. It has never turned out boys and girls who, at the moment of their graduation are admitted for the business of living in the environment in which they were born and in which they must live, that when it comes to be thought of a self-educator.

There is essentially no American system of education. It is an inherited habit, come from the educational practice of Greece and Rome. It was the system of the ancient world, the system of the middle ages, the system of the modern world. From the rules of the old civilization it has been materially changed. The system of the middle ages was out of date. When these facts were realized, modern thought began to change the old system of classical training that would come closer to the people, that would reach the masses instead of the few upper classes only, conserving meanwhile the quality that was supposed to come from attention to the old classical subjects alone. If that conception of education is to be realized, it must be through education that gives attention to the home side, the vocational side, the life work side of the student. That, at least, is what these Peabody boys and what they are trying to work out with their three and a quarter millions of dollars. They say that they expect to educate the people of the south so that, when a boy or girl will be not only cultured but practically prepared to do well the things that are to be done every day.

That, of course, is a mighty big contract. It amounts to this: real education for real living; the training of women who will know how to make homes in which they, their husbands and their children, may live better lives; the training of men who will know how to run farms and factories in such fashion that work will cease to be drudgery and become natural and pleasurable; the training of both men and women who will make community life a thing worth while for all who have part in it. It is a contract that no institution could fill—if it undertakes to go to the general student public with it.

Peabody, therefore, needs out to reach the teachers and through them, to touch all the children of the south, even those of the most remote country school—most particularly those of the remote country school. It is announced as the "first teachers' college for the entire south."

Whether Peabody ever accomplishes that task or not, it has a full opportunity to try it. It is starting now. It has no traditions. It is bound by no ties to follow any course of study ever laid down by any institution. It is under no sort of control either church or of state. Those things constitute an opportunity no school has heretofore had of breaking away from the old traditions.

When George Peabody College for Teachers began adjusting itself to a new order—for it had thirty-five years of existence prior to that—its need was for a man who could manufacture out of the whole south. That was three years ago. There was at that time at the University of Virginia a young fellow named Bruce R. Payne who had won himself a reputation in his own world as a man who had been in whom there was a willingness to cut loose from traditions. He came to Peabody as its president and assumed control. The work immediately before him was that of organization, first of the physical plant, then of the school and then of the physical forces to direct it. The plan of building and grounds is speaking well within the bounds of fact, comprehensively efficient in a degree that has rarely been approached. There may have been those who thought when the plans were announced, that Dr. Payne and his co-workers were dreamers but, with two of the main buildings complete, perfectly adapted and thoroughly equipped for the particular work that George Peabody college for teachers seeks to do, it becomes apparent that the mental processes behind the planning were those of a man wide awake and soberly sensible. Fully eight other years will pass before Dr. Payne's "dream" is fully crystallized in brick and stone. The physical work of putting up the plant was a ten years' job, but the two buildings already completed, one designated the Industrial Arts building and the other the Home Economics building, are sufficient, with the smaller structures round about, to house the school until other buildings, two of which are now in process of construction are ready for occupancy.

The matter of physical equipment was the first great task. It was heavy, not only because of its proportions but also because there was little in the way of precedent to follow. The home for a new sort of school had to be erected on a new sort of plan. It is still far from completion, but it has progressed sufficiently far to make its feasibility apparent. The second task was even a greater one. Given the money, a man with an idea may clothe that idea in the semblance of order, but, be his idea so large that he can not himself put it into force and effect, there is no certainty that he can find other men nearly enough in rapport with him to invest the idea with the substance of realization. Dr. Payne approached that task, in a manner of speaking, with both hands busy. On the one side he was raising endowment. On the other he was outlaying money in plant. But with the approach of the date for the institution—June 15—there is gathered at George Peabody college for teachers a band of specialists in education drawn from the best institutions in the country, enthused with the basic idea of Peabody's work and co-operating in a rare fashion.

And so the first teachers college for the entire south starts going, and after long waiting.

Maybe it is an experiment. It might conceivably fail. But it looks a good deal like an operating plant of a genuine system of American education that has come through much travail for the entire south.

ON THE ROAD WITH THE COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS

J. M. McKibben, A. S. Wilkins and J. A. Woodliff, are the Dougherty-Williams-Wyatt Co. travelers who have just returned from the season last week, in spite of the depression due to weather conditions.

J. P. Armstrong, who travels for the Dougherty-Williams-Wyatt Co., had a race for his train home the other day that he hopes he will not have to make often. It was by auto from Mansfield to Covington on about the dirtiest road in that section. When he reached Covington he looked like a flour factory hand.

Josee F. Tate, the hat traveler, is a bit worried about two years ago he was dubbed "Friendless" by the Dougherty-Williams-Wyatt Co. because of his column with some bit of sympathy for the reason for the name that resulted in a large mail coming to the friendless one scattered over his territory. The note being in square envelopes of various hues. At that time J. F. Tate was in square back but he now has one who fills the role of sympathizer. The last week he received from some one a person in a square envelope a letter no less sympathetic because long delayed. But he can't sympathize now. Josee F. Tate is a bit worried.

Gray Singleton is the new representative in Florida for the A. M. Robinson company. He started about ten days ago and already is turning in a good business, especially in the territory he is new to. He is now in the territory he is new to. He is now in the territory he is new to.

Chris Irby, of the A. M. Robinson Co. staff, had sixteen orders in his memo book to show results of his week's work, one of the best showings among the dry goods travelers recently.

J. Wesley Kea, who covers a part of Florida for the A. M. Robinson Co., reported to be having an excellent season.

Sam Cheek is keeping a fair amount of goods moving in the Dougherty-Williams-Wyatt company into his north Georgia territory. He has been nearly six weeks since there has been rain in that section and the effect of the drought on trade is marked.

E. E. Hughes, of the Hughes Oil company, will make a trip among his north Georgia customers by auto soon.

An indication of why J. Gads Adley, with the R. K. Riser company, became a successful salesman, is found in his early showing of the commercial institute the day, when he was 12, living on a farm, he was offered 25 cents by a neighbor if he would find the mail.

On horseback he searched all the afternoon through the fields and wood for snails and returning at dusk unsuccessful about the barnyard gate. The future successful salesman opened the gate, let her in and walked over to the house and collected his quarter.

E. P. Lewis, of the McClure Ten-Cent company, expects to open a 21-unit store for G. C. Lippard, of Peoria, Ill., in August. He sold an opening bill to R. P. Stewart, of Peoria, Ill., the day.

T. D. Anderson, of the McClure Ten-Cent company, spent last week in Marietta, Ga., opening a new 5 and 10-cent department for the Hittcock-McClure-Roberts company.

The McClure Ten-Cent company has received nine solid carloads of glassware and five of crockery, which have been distributed to their customers throughout the south. This goes to prove their prediction for a big demand for this class of merchandise during the spring and summer months.

The Hotel Elberton at Elberton, Ga., has reduced its rates to $2 a day. G. H. Hall, the manager, states that the high standard of the hotel will be maintained in every particular and that everything will be done to merit the large patronage which it has gained in the past.

E. M. Hudson, of the McCord-Stewart company, is now in Paris, France, on a ten-day tour for an extended tour of European countries. He expects to return about the middle of June.

C. M. McKinnon, of the Dougherty-Williams-Wyatt Co., sent in orders for the large carload of his company's pickle products to Mr. E. L. Cooksey, who was in town last week. J. S. Lee of this company secured orders for a car load also at Tampa, Fla.

H. A. McDonald, of McCord-Stewart company, reports having had a fine time at the U. C. T. convention at Jacksonville, Fla. While he was gone the house forwarded to him several letters from the handsome widows in his territory.

Since Shriners' week W. R. Simpson of Jones Brothers and company has been on quite an extensive trip. He sold out quite a number of picnic products at Macon, Ga., made a trip to Savannah, called on a number of customers at Valdosta, and spent part of last week at Tifton, Ga., receiving customers for the company's sailing station at that point.

Frank Singer of the H. L. Singer company was ill and unable to be at the office several days last week. He insists, however, that he is missing nothing, but he has promised to make it up so that it shall not occur again.

I. R. Banks will leave this week on his long contemplated summer vacation trip to the mountains of North Carolina.

W. J. Hays, the Dougherty-Williams-Wyatt city salesman, states he took him only twenty minutes to learn to run his car, recently purchased Buick.

Does not dispute the statement that Hays that it was ten, or at least six days, before he assumed again his natural cheerful expression while driving, looking those who come through a male of traffic like a New York taxicab driver and taking good business at the same time.

The highest sales record for May at the H. L. Singer company goes to J. E. Brown. This is the fifth month in succession in which Mr. Brown has led in volume of business incident to Shriners' week.

E. D. Crane & Co. received an order Thursday by telegraph for one of their high grade delivery wagons and shipped it out the same day by express to a customer in one of the far corners of North Carolina.

The following were visitors at the Lamar & Rankin Drug company last week: Dr. J. C. Matthews, Gay, Ga.; Dr. C. L. Rankin, Temple, Ga.; Dr. W. J. Sams, Woodsey, Ga.; Dr. J. Z. Henry, Ellerswood, Ga.; Dr. J. W. Pickett, Darby, Ga.; W. M. Mitchell, Loganville, Ga.; R. N. Williams, Stockbridge, Ga.; Dr. Cannon, Jonesboro, Ga.; Dr. C. M. Spraberry, Hot, Ga.; Dr. R. A. Balfour, Conover, Ga.

H. L. Allan, buyer for the Lamar & Rankin Drug company, is one of the first from the wholesale houses to get away on a vacation to New York.

Max Samuels, the big Hirschberg company traveler, who has been in Atlanta for several weeks will be back on the road next week.

Tom Yon, Florida salesman for the Dougherty-Williams-Wyatt company, has apparently not yet lost the enthusiasm he has in his visit to the headquarters several weeks ago. He is having his best business of the year.

J. P. Bell, advertising manager for the John Deere Plow company, will be on vacation for the next two weeks. He and Mrs. Bell will visit his old home at Columbus, Miss.

W. H. Stents and T. K. Johnson, general manager and division sales manager respectively of the John Deere Plow company, spent several days of last week at Savannah attending the meeting of the Georgia State Hardware association, where they met many of the dealers handling the Deere implements.

R. R. Lubbock, division sales manager for the John Deere Plow company, has

ANDREWS ASKS AID FOR SICK TRAVELING MAN

E. L. Cooksey, Ill at Terminal Hotel, Needs Funds for Treatment

A few days ago the manager of the Terminal hotel called over the phone and stated that there was a traveling man stopping there who was very sick and needed attention.

It having always been my purpose to render service to any one where I could do so, and because of my special appreciation of traveling men as a class, I called on this man at once and found a Mr. E. L. Cooksey, who was not too sick to leave his room but it is doubtful whether he will ever be able to leave or not, whose home has been in Albany, Ga., but he states that he has traveled the Georgia territory for ten or twelve years under the supervision of Mr. George J. Richmond, the agent of the Money Weight Scales company, of this section, until he was forced to give up his job through physical weakness.

He advised me that his funds were totally exhausted and that he had no resources upon which to draw in this hour of need, and he requested me to use whatever opportunity and facilities I could find to get his unfortunate condition before the traveling men's benevolent association, presenting his case liberally, as well as their sympathetic nature, that they would undertake to provide him with sufficient money to secure for him the needed treatment and I am sending this letter to the Firing Line as the greatest means obtainable, presenting his case to the traveling men. He would be glad for any one interested to call on him in his room at the Terminal hotel within the next few days.

Personally, I believe that his case presents a very strong appeal to those who have been more fortunate than he has for assistance. Any money sent to me will be delivered to him.

Yours very truly,

R. A. ANDREWS,

Atlanta, Ga., May 19, 1914.

POLK CO. TO BANQUET

E. L. ADAMS SALES FORCE

The Polk Canning company, of Greenville, Ind., will give a dinner at the Ansley hotel next Saturday night to the sales and office force of the E. L. Adams company, who are Atlanta distributors for the Polk canned vegetables. At the dinner will be present the president, the secretary, the sales manager and an expert salesman who will give a lecture on up-to-date sales.

There will also be given the company's connections at Macon, Augusta and Chattanooga.

FAIN & STAMPS FORCE HOLD SALES CONFERENCE

Revise Price Lists, Get New Samples and Prepare for June Trade

All of the sales force of Fain & Stamps were "in" Saturday for one of the most successful and enthusiastic sales conferences held by the company since 1908. The conference lasted from 8:30 to 2 o'clock and was devoted to the discussion of sales problems and to the revising of price lists and furnishing the salesmen with new samples. Samples of practically every line in the house were opened, tasted and discussed. The meetings hereafter will be held semi-monthly.

The salesmen will go on the road Monday well supplied with new samples and renewed in enthusiasm and vigor for making June a record sales month. The salesmen brought with them reports of rain in several sections of the Atlanta territory on Friday.

W. O. Stamps presided and the following salesmen were present: J. C. Owens, Cliff Edwards, S. E. Smith, W. T. Duncan, W. K. Bailey, R. E. Hutchinson, W. A. Quarles, W. S. Gaston, B. H. Messer and T. N. Glynn.

AD'S OF 'UNCLE SAM' BREAD ATTRACT WIDE ATTENTION

Company Gets Request From Big Chicago Daily to Write Up Atlanta Campaign

The advertising campaign of the Schlesinger-Meyer Baking company, makers of Uncle Sam bread, backed by the high quality of their product is proving highly successful and is attracting wide attention. Not long ago they received a request from one of the leading Chicago dailies which had noticed this company's advertising, asking permission to write up the Schlesinger-Meyer company's Atlanta campaign editorially for the benefit of this Chicago daily.

An example of the company's timely and expert advertising is to be noticed in their recent ads in The Journal. On last Sunday the press carried a news item which contained the following statement from the Georgia board of health:

"If you eat corn bread, grits, hominy, muffins and other articles of diet made from corn you do so at your own risk and against the advice of the most careful students of poisons for the past century."

The Schlesinger-Meyer company have been taking advantage of this news item by running a series of display advertisements in The Journal in which they point out the healthfulness and high quality of their Uncle Sam bread which is made from the best wheat flour.

In the Matter of CO-OPERATION

The best bit of writing that exists on the subject of CO-OPERATION was done nearly a couple of thousand years ago by a man named Paul.

He was a native Tarsan. He was bright, shrewd, keen and withal a philosopher.

Also he was an organizer—a great one. He knew folks. He had a knack of getting facts into their minds in a way that made the facts stick.

He was some letter-writer.

In a letter to some friends of his at Corinth—a live and impressive town, by the way—he was talking about the necessity for working together.

Everybody has a contribution to make to the general good, was his idea. And the general good cannot be achieved unless everybody makes his special and peculiar contribution the sto.

Having said v Paul proceeded to drive it home by a famous figure of speech, involving the hand and the foot, the eye and the ear, and so on.

It's a bit of writing well worth looking up. Its interesting and profitable.

CO-OPERATION!

If we manufacturers sold our goods direct to the consumer, we would go straight after the consumer in the effort to secure his co-operation.

But we don't sell that way.

Therefore, we must have the co-operation of the dealer. He's our main man.

For several weeks we have been co-operatively printing these trade talks.

Co-operative advertising is good business.

We notice that the big meat packers have been at it.

They began it with huge success in Indianapolis just a short while back.

The hotels are doing it. The summer resorts are doing it. Hundreds of towns and cities are doing it.

But the point is not the advertising just now.

That's incidental only. We co-operate in that because we are after YOUR co-operation in the distribution of our goods.

The basis of our argument is very direct—very reasonable.

The goods that we are putting out are RIGHT in every particular. They are the peer of any in the American market. They SELL—readily, easily, profitably.

They are made near you. They are produced at home.

There's actual advantage to you in stocking and selling them. This is a matter of simple proof—let us prove it to you.

When the odds are in your favor, isn't it worth your while to take a try at the thing?

You can't lose.

You Dealers have a special and important part to perform in the establishment of permanent commercial and industrial success in your section.

No one else can do what you can.

Ain't you going to lend a hand in building up the community you live in?

You and we are part of the same commercial body. We've got to hang together.

We've got to work together.

We've got to CO-OPERATE.

Let's begin now.

We want your orders. Inquiries welcome. Quick action on all requests.

ATLANTA'S WATER NYMPHS

Miss Nora
Stirling

GIRL SWIMMERS
HERE ARE BEST IN THE SOUTH

Swimmers
At the Adair
Pool

MISS NORA STIRLING, 14 years old, the central figure on this page, swam 50 yards in 1 minute and 55 seconds, and a quarter of a mile in 10 minutes and 49 seconds in the water carnival last summer at East Lake.

She has done half a mile in little more than 16 minutes, and swum round East lake, a distance of 1 1/2 to 2 miles, without exertion. She is one of Atlanta's water nymphs.

The residence of her father, Dr. Alexander W. Stirling, is at East Lake, and looks out on the long curving stretch of water where she learned to swim when she was only 8 years old.

This first lesson taught her to keep afloat. Soon, she could circle the lake. And last summer she won all events in which she contested at the East Lake water carnival. Both at swimming and at diving she was unequalled.

Other swimmers who won places in this carnival were Miss Regina Rambo and Miss Lida Nash.

At Piedmont lake, Jennie Parkerson is acknowledged to be best among swimmers. But she had close competitors last year, and the number will be larger this season.

Another excellent swimmer at Piedmont is Mrs. Frances Schmidt. Three swimmers at the pool which adjoins the residence of Forrest Adair in Druid Hills are shown here. During last summer, this pool was a gathering place for society folk and was a means of adding to the number of swimmers here who take to water sports as readily as to bridge.

Among those who swim excellently and divided their time between East Lake and the Adair pool were Miss Gladys Sands, Miss Ellen O'Keefe, and Miss Helen Battle.

There were just as many swimmers at Brookhaven, and just as adept. In fact there is no place in the south where swimming encroaches so on the tango as in Atlanta.

The question now is: When can time be found to dance? The Adair pool in the morning, East Lake one afternoon, Brookhaven the next. And as for Piedmont it always brims with sleeked and happy swimmers.

At Lakewood, a part of the water was drained off this winter, heaps of sand were spread over the bottom at the bath house, and all that the lake now needs is a salty taste to be part of the sea.

Silver Lake, despite its distance from Atlanta, will be popular this season with swimmers. Scores of camping parties have been planned for the lake, and announcement that a bus will ply between the lake and the car line, over four miles of hot Peachtree road, will bring hundreds there who never before knew it to be one of the prettiest stretches of water in Georgia.

Before many weeks, three girls in Atlanta will know how to swim where only one could swim last year. And even now there are more girl swimmers in Atlanta than in any other southern city, save possibly a few coast towns. Atlanta has become an inland lake resort, and Atlanta girls water nymphs.

Cuzco, Peru.

In closing this letter I would say that the conditions of the Indians are those that are current in the province of Paucartambo, and that they are not the same all over Peru. There are many places in which the Indians are not so well treated, and I feel for the use of their houses and lands, and in some they are also paid a small wage for their work. In other places they are not paid for any of their work and raise their own stock and crops. As a rule, however, they have but few rights that the white and Cholo landowners are able to deprive them of. I feel that there is room for a great movement toward their education and civilization, and in the giving of them the liberty which we all should have. I am sure of every one's sympathy. Yours, H. H. Hays.

"The next account is that of Manuel Jacinto, who received $45 during the year and at the end owed $34. Part of the balance he paid in currency, and he is credited also with a cent for the loan of his horse. He has $21 for riding, train of llamas to Casco and bringing back food and meat. Think of going 108 miles for $1, and carrying a ton load on your llamas all the way. Here is the account of Facunda Casco, who showed that he sold us thirty sheep for $7.50 or for 25 cents apiece. The other accounts run much the same."

"Tell me something about the homes and life of the Indians on the farm."

"Their homes are just about the same as those you see everywhere between here and Lake Titicaca. They are mud huts, thatched with straw. The huts have no windows, and are entered by low doors. There is only one door to a hut, and this is made small on account of the cold weather. There is no floor but a great, and the people sit and sleep on the floor. They lie down at night upon skins of llamas or alpacas, covering themselves with their ponchos or blankets. In some huts

One of the hacendados told me that he found it very difficult to find men for his army the most difficult to control and that he wanted his Indians advised by scholars or by good advisers or friends.

In closing this letter I would say that the Indians who are described are those current in the province of Patatecarbanco, and that they are not the same as those who are found in many places in which the Indians work only two or three days a week for the hacendados, and in some they are also paid a small wage for their work. The hacendados are the ones who place their own and raise their own stock and crops. As a result of this the white and Cholole landowners are bound to have a great interest in the great movement toward their education and civilization, and in the giving of them the best of what is conceded should be the right of every children. For some years, however, ill-feeling has been developing between the children of the two women. This culminated recently in one of Miss Gaskill's daughters preferring the custody of maternal conduct against Miss Hagar, while her mother preferred the same charge against her father.

The hearing resulted in Miss Hagar being held for court in $500 bail, which was furnished, and there the matter rests until court convenes again.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

HOW TO DUST A ROOM.

Do any real housekeepers nowadays use feather dusters? Of course, they are still seen on the stage, flourished around y ornamental parlor maids, the one of about as much service as the other. And a few days ago when I was waiting for a friend in a hotel drawing room I saw a man using a feather duster in the same old way, flitting it over the surface of the furniture and the frames of the pictures, apparently entirely satisfied he was doing his work perfectly and completely unaware of the fact he was simply scattering the dust from one place that it might settle in another.

But I repeat my question, Do any real housekeeper nowadays use feather dusters?

I see them on sale in the shops and somebody must buy them or they would not be there. I hope with all my heart they are purchased for the stage and for the man who dusts off the outside of a carriage or a motor car. They are assuredly of no value in the well kept home.

If the agitation over larks and omnipresent germs had done no other good except to lead people to the perils of old-fashioned methods of sweeping and dusting, it would have served a good purpose. That agitation as much as anything else is responsible for the banishment of the feather duster. When housekeepers once grasped the idea that the dust they carelessly scattered about in their haphazard dusting was really floating matter alive with dangerous microbes they proceeded at once to reform their ways. Now the cry everywhere is for the duster. The one thing which will really take up the dust and allow the worker to remove it from her home instead of merely dispersing it.

Drifts Blow Dust About

Even today the untrained sweeper and duster does not appreciate the importance of the work she does or of her way of doing it. We have all seen the careless sweepers who leave both dust and window open in the room where she is busy, scattering the dust all over the house by the draft which has swept across the piles she had gathered up. Even the trained housewife is formed in the same manner by those who have never been taught better and whom it has not occurred that they have found out. Many of the duties of a task are in common as a class are trained housekeepers, but for the sake of the beginner, who lack instruction in this line I would like to give a few directions I have found

At the first place, get a room thoroughly ready for sweeping before you begin. If you attack it at random you insure yourself a great deal of trouble and a very bad factory result. Move the lighter articles out of the room, dusting them first; put ornaments and bric-a-brac away. Bear in mind that the room will be swept from the back in their place the room will be clean and that if they are not you will have to sweep them in the process of making them presentable. The lightest articles hang within reach are easily taken down; larger ones should have cloths hung over them. The places of furniture which are not to be swept should be marked. Sweeping sheets spread up them.

These sweeping sheets should be made and kept for this purpose alone and they should be made of a material which is strong, which has holes and worn places in them through which the dust can make its way readily. The best plan is to buy coarse muslin, or a similar material, and to make it with turkey red or with red braid so you can tell the sweeping sheets from any other.

* *

Dressing for the Job.

Your own preparation for the work is as important as that of the room. In the first have on easy shoes which will not hurt your feet. This does not of necessity hold, worn out shoes. I have known many which were so badly run down that the wearer would have to walk with a new, stiff pair of boots. Be sure the shoes you wear will afford comfort, your ankles are adequately sustained, at you are not wearying yourself unnecessarily by tights or ill chosen footwear.

Think I am safe in taking it for granted that you are too sensible a woman to wear gaiters corsets about your housework or yourself in tight sleeves and narrow skirts. Your frock should be short enough at the floor well and made of some material that it may go into the tub when it needs it. It should also be loose to be easy, which does not imply that it should be an ugly, shapeless garment but one cut with judgment and commonsense. Your head should be covered by a comprehensive sweeping cap—not the bouffant variety, decked out with feathers and the like, but one which will sweep the hair entirely and can be washed, it requires it.

Green Sweeping and Dusting.

When you have your new vacuum cleaner equipped, you can start your task. Sweep the pieces of furniture can, perhaps, be done together, unless they are in the way against the wall. In that case, sweep them with a small brush or a rug sweeper. There is more to say in a moment. Sit down.

person. If any one has an invalid wheel chair which is not in use I would be so thankful to have the use of one until I get a new one. I will be glad to pay for any transportation charges. When I am able to get out of the hospital I will have some things to offer to any one who may want them. Mrs. H. P. P. says that she can be of help by supposing that there is a wheel chair which is not being used. I can be of help if my invalid needs it. She does not ask for it as a gift but as a loan, and I shall expect to be lent for a while until the invalid no longer needs it. I will be glad to offer the chair as soon as this letter has been received. I will be glad to offer to any one who is eager to give someone the chance to get a breath of air outside of a sickroom.

I would appreciate it very much.

It strikes me that any one who has, so to speak, paid her way by answering an appeal for help, should be allowed to have aid and comfort to invade in her neighborhood and outside of it should nurse and help others. I have been so since she desires. Has no one such a one as you? I would like to know the address. Don't send the volume to hold of the paper, but let me put you ly in touch with the correspondent. I wish you may use as eager to give me as she is to offer to others.

Three Books.

I wish to thank you for the copy of "The Delicate" I mailed an appeal for. I like Corner's work and I have read my mother on her birthday.

What a delightful fraternising so this is, in which we may all be interested. I have read "The Delicate" and my mother will write and thank me for it.

I have also received a copy of "The Bookcase" and selected three books I am pleased to pass on to some one else. I have also received a copy of "The Delicate" and "The Glory of Clematis" and "The Delicate" by A. M. T.

My mother, and a note of "The Delicate" is one of the most delightful things I have ever read. I just want to say to you that I am glad to learn the book came on my mother's birthday, and I am sure it will be a volume so kindly offered.

Formula for Fuel.

Will you please repeat the formula for that apparatus for your Corcoran some time? Was the coal in the mixture to be "oil" or "oil" and "oil" or "oil" using, or is it to be used as soon as needed?

I regret to say I have not a copy of the formula for which you ask. Perhaps some of our friends who supplied the first place may be able to repeat it if so. You will be gladly received and a will be glad to see you. I am sure that those interested in it may cut and paste it into their own book. I am an index where it can be easily found referred to.

When lemon is used, the lemon juice is added, and the lemon juice seems to prevent curdling of the milk. I have a 'never fail' pie crust recipe which can be used for any pie. I use it in my kitchen cool place. Here it is: Three cups flour sifted with three teaspoons sugar, one-half teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt. Mix together. Add one egg, one cup shortening (one part butter to two parts lard); cut until well mixed; add sufficient cold liquid to make a stiff dough. Knead enough stick together and roll out on flour board. about making a layer cake. I myself have been unsuccessful with them until lately when I tried the following recipe, which goes well for me, and will explain how it is put together. Half a cupful of butter, one cupful of sugar, yolks of three eggs, one cupful of milk, one cupful of flour, two rounding teaspoonsful of baking powder, a small pinch of salt. Cream the butter and sugar together, add the yolks until the two are blended and the heat of the butter and the sugar together dissolves the yolks. Put in next the yolks of the eggs. Then add the milk and stir it all up with a milk. Mix the baking powder and salt with the flour and stir it in about half a cupful at a time, stirring all the while, and flavoring and beat hard for one minute, then pour it in the tins and bake in a quick oven. If you will use waxed paper to line the tins, you will not have to grease them; you will not be troubled with the cake sticking. Let the cake cool well before taking it from the pan. The paper is easily removed.

I am the mother of three dear little girls and two boys. As we are in poor circumstances, I am anxious to receive a nice collection of flower slips, which I may ever get away from home, and my life is lonely at times. I would also enjoy to hear from you. I am sure I will not come one, send her a few and let her chance to have her dream come true.

I agree with the suggestion the selfishness is at the bottom of much of the unhappiness in stepmothered homes. One of our correspondents said when writing of the same subject not long ago, "One word sums it all up, jealousy!" And what after all is jealousy but a form of selfishness? I know that our beginners at writing will welcome the good advice about "peeling away," and we are all interested to hear E. R. HOW TO FORGET THE HOT WEATHER

WATER rippling with a cool sound, bushes drooping until their leaves form an arbor, a great tree spreading its branches in a mass of green, and little children wading.

The picture is to be seen in any one of a score of nooks near Atlanta. The spreading tree, the gleam of water, and the green lush plants in the accompanying photograph are but a suggestion of a spot near Lakewood. The picture tells only in part of the beauty of the sylvan retreat.

The little boys wading in a stream near Kirkwood are but a hint of the gleeful little folk, as they actually explored the tiny rill that finds its way through green fields and under bending trees, although its course is by the edge of the city.

These hot days make the city stifling.

Then, why not spend leisure moments in the country that lies just beyond Atlanta?

Past the golf links in Druid Hills are woods that seem almost primeval. No axe appears to have touched them. The thick-ness of the bushes, the wealth of wild flowers, the air of the woodland seem remote from town and men.

It is such a spot as one would expect to find in an enclosure where a club was to be formed, here to pass afternoons on Saturdays and Sundays in rambles through the woodlands that encircle Atlanta. This club has not yet reached organization. But the plan has been suggested, and in time may be adopted.

An idle Sunday may prove a dreary one. Heat and tedium are merciless. Minutes drag. But when search is being made for such spots as the nook where the great tree spreads, the water sparkles and the grass is green, there is thought neither of sultry weather nor of tedious moments.

The season for wading as well as for swimming has opened. Could you have greater sport in the surf than the little boys in accompanying pictures are gaining from the small stream near Kirkwood? All things, in fact, are a welcome to the country; and no greater spots are to be found these summer months than the woods around Atlanta.

Gen. Funston's Story Of Fighting In Cuba

the gun was indicated by its smoke, so that an uncomfortable number of bullets came through the gap left for it.

As I was aiming the gun for about the twelfth shot, I felt a hard blow on the sole of my left foot and made a fall that afterward cost me no end of chaffing. A bullet had split the sole of my left shoe and knocked off the heel, but had inflicted no more severe injury than a considerable bruise.

Occasionally a man was hit and carried away, but despite all the uproar there were but few casualties. And so this strange little battle went on for an hour, now fast and furious for a few moments and now almost dying out for a like time.

So far it had been a contest between about eighty Spanish infantrymen and a handful of men with a canon.

The Cuban infantry had not yet opened fire, as there was no satisfactory target for them and there was danger of hitting their comrades scattered around the town.

Several times we dragged the gun from behind the parapet and took effect from the church, with no other result than to damage the building somewhat and to draw an increased fire.

We had accomplished all we could from our present position, so I walked over to General Gomez's headquarters, distant about 400 yards, and suggested that we keep up a slow fire during the remainder of the day and that at night a new parapet bearing on the church be built. This was agreed to. On the way back I walked over to where our ammunition mules were standing.

While I was looking them over, one big fellow received a flamer bullet through the nose. He overcropping grass at the time, and for a few seconds shook his head vigorously and then went on eating.

Chapter IV STORY OF SECOND BATTLE AT CASCORRA

The second day's battle of Cascorra was a repetition of the afternoon of the first—a shot about every half-hour at either the tavern or the church and an occasional volley from the trenches in reply.

That evening we Americans talked on that and the tavern positions, and if he would have a good position constructed that night from which we might effectively shell the church, and give us an hour in the morning in which to destroy that building, we would gladly lead an assault on that and the tavern positions, fixing 200 as the number of men required for the enterprise. It was our theory that if we made the dash the Cubans would follow us, and that once in the shelter of the trenches we could not be driven out by the fire from the Spanish redoubt.

Several Cuban officers, hearing of our proposal volunteered to assist in leading the attack. At one time the general came near yielding, but finally came out with an abrupt "No!" telling us that we were madmen.

General Rosa was in direct command of the force of infantry and dismounted cavalry surrounding the town, and had worked some of his men nearer and nearer to the tavern position by taking advantage of inequalities of the ground.

He reported to General Gomez that by taking advantage of the cover afforded by a ravine we could obtain position within 200 yards of the tavern, where we would be in full view of the trenches and could undoubtedly destroy them.

He was ordered to construct the necessary parapet that night. Before daylight, a detail dragged the much-abused Hotchkiss quietly into the ravine and along it until we were directly opposite the new position, when it was hoisted out, the unavoidable noise drawing a fire that killed one man.

We waited until it was thoroughly by light before opening fire, but not so with the enemy. With the breaking of day the Spaniards made out the exact location of the new parapet and opened on its body, but we were not hurt.

When it was thoroughly light we crawled out of the ravine on all fours and sent a shell that landed squarely on the low line of earth-filled bags that capped the low parapet of the Spanish trench, exploding with a bang that sounded almost as loud to us as the report of the piece itself.

Jones, at the two-pounder, was awaiting the cue, and almost immediately we heard its sharp crack, and a shell whistled past us.

We had fastened a rope to the trail of our gun, and immediately dragged it behind shelter to be reloaded. Again it was pushed up to the gap and fired. The Spaniards were replying furiously, and the worst of it was that their bullets were all coming close down to the ground, and were aimed at the gaping porthole which they could so plainly see.

It has fallen to me to participate in a good many fights in Cuba and the Philippines, but never anywhere have I seen the equal of what we held in us during the hour that we held this position. The air was fairly alive with the sound of bullets, and their patter against the side of the parapet was so incessant that it would have been impossible to count them. The bark on nearby trees was cut to ribbons, and bushes on our front were destroyed.

After a few shots from our gun, the head cover, connecting the two wings of the parapet was blown to pieces. Under such circumstances, aiming the gun, the only part of its service which was required to be done while it was exposed, was enough to try the nerves of any but a wooden man. Fortunately this was the work of but a couple of seconds, the target being so aiming the fifteenth shell when a bullet struck one of the trunnions almost at my nose. My nerves had been getting pretty shaky from several such experiences, and the preceding shots, and I must confess that I threw myself flat on the ground and rolled to cover.

Joyce jumped over me, quickly sighted the piece, and sprang from the gun. The imperturbable Pennington, lying on the ground and smoking a cigarette, jerked the lanyard and fired the last shot from this terrible death trap.

This settled it and General Rosa ordered us to take cover in the ravine, about half a mile from the town. Being, now that they had put the gun out of action, the Spaniards concentrated their fire on the Cuban infantry and inflicted several casualties.

After us with such haste that it landed upside down in the bottom. The next day for the first time, the general visited the gun while it was in action, accompanied by his entire staff, and we realized from the looks on the faces of all that something was about to take place. The general, sitting on the ground a few paces from us, dictated a letter to his secretary. A Porto Rican major in the Cuban service, a gallant fellow whose name I cannot recall, mounted his horse and, holding aloft a white flag, trotted toward the redoubt.

It was a letter courteously demanding surrender. The Spanish commander's reply was equally courteous, but stated that he would defend his post to the last extremity. A short time later firing was resumed.

General Gomez at once ordered us to extend all the remaining artillery ammunition on the town, and I prefer Florida.

Perhaps you'll be interested in the contrast. This is my story:

On a glorious day, when the sun shone bravely on palms and on a sea of sapphirine blue, I found myself in Uganda, South Africa, and I decided to try farming.

In Uganda fruit grows luxuriantly in a wild state. But when you begin to cultivate it, you grow more trouble than you do fruit.

I found this out right away. The first year locusts—Pharaoh's whole crop—descended on me and mine, and when they took wing and flew away they left nothing behind them.

Then, a man-eating lion prowling round in the night for food, took one of my best "nigger boys," and left me nothing but a few scraps of the black fellows' clothes, and a panicle among the rest of the boys. I saw miles of pineapples, fields of tomatoes, and farms of strawberries.

I arranged a hunting party, and avenged myself on lion. But what was the use. A few days later a herd of elephants decided to pay me a little sociable visit, and when they'd left there wasn't a thing they hadn't trampled on.

With the lion skin and two elephant tusks as the proceeds of my farming I came back to the United States. That was two years ago.

I met a real estate agent. I think he must have been the same one who sold me that Uganda farm. You know they have the same winning smile the world over, and the same handshake that makes them seem brothers in blood to you.

He sold me a farm near Lake Worth, Fla. Here comes the contrast.

The crops are "har" in this sister state of Georgia's than they are in Uganda. But the best thing is there are no locusts there to mistake you for Pharaoh, so lions to break fast off your farm hands, no elephants to pay you a sociable visit.

For the country, you need to be an artist with a brush and lots of paint tubes to pay you a sociable visit.

I saw miles of pineapples, fields of tomatoes, and farms of strawberries.

In other words, Uganda is the farm hand's world. Florida is his Paradise. That's my story.
